EL PASO, TEXAS:
EL PASO DIRECTORY CO.
PREFACE.

In presenting the second volume of the annual City Directory of El Paso to the public, the publisher desires to emphasize the fact that the enumeration of the city's population for this work has been the most thorough and complete ever yet made for directory purposes. In this Directory there are exactly 10,700 names entered. When it is stated that never before has any Directory of the city contained more than 8,000 entries, the truth of the statement above is obvious.

The question of the probable population of El Paso is always an interesting one locally. Opinions differ as to just how many people call El Paso their home, but the publisher is convinced the population may be estimated within a small fraction by multiplying the total of 10,700 by 2½—a smaller multiple than is usually adopted for this purpose in other cities. This would give 26,725 as the total number of inhabitants, the smelter being included in the total, and all transients excluded. There may be those who hold these figures are too high, but in reply to such a criticism the publisher insists, after visiting each house in every nook and corner of the city, that his judgment is entitled to the greater weight in the premises. As a matter of interest it may be further stated that about 55 per cent of the city's population is Mexican, and that 80 per cent of the people live south of Overland street.

The showing of population is particularly gratifying when it is remembered that there are about 1,700 less residents in the vicinity of the El Paso Smelting Works this year than there was last, owing to the closing down of the works on account of the fire last summer. The demand for labor on the P. & N. E. and the E. P. & S. W. railroads has likewise diminished the city's population somewhat. Both causes combined have caused a reduction of perhaps 5,000 in the city's population—in other words, under usual conditions the enumeration this year would have evidenced 22,000 or 23,000 inhabitants.

That El Paso is rapidly growing, not alone in population, but in commercial and industrial importance, is well recognized. The entry into this field of two great packing houses like the Armours and the Swifts; the Brunswick-Balke-Colaender Co., the largest house of its kind in the world; and several important machinery companies, within the last few months—these are facts which demonstrate that El Paso's future greatness as the distributing point for the entire Southwest is foreseen by enterprising and observing business men.

The steady increase in the issue of building permits, tabulated, elsewhere in this work, evidences the growth of the city, and the demand for houses and buildings is as keen today as it ever was. The financial strength of the city may be gauged from the statements of the three national banks, which show resources of $3,274,588.17, and deposits of $2,740,172.00. The El Paso postoffice handles 12,200 pieces of mail matter daily, or 4,453,000 a year; its stamp sales last year were $33,386.18, as against $28,375.35 in 1900, an increase of 18 per cent. El Paso ranks ninth among the ports of entry in the United States, the exports through this port for 1901 being valued at $4,500,000. The freight moved by the railroads to this city, for its use and that of the country surrounding, averages 85,000 tons per month, and requires 3,400 cars to load it. These figures attest something as to El Paso's growth.

The publisher invites attention to the fact that the present volume embraces some features new to local directory publications. In addition to a comprehensive review of this city's development and resources, it likewise contains business directories of Las Cruces, N. M., and of Juarez and Chihuahua, Mex. The value to the business community of these additions will, we trust, be duly appreciated. No pains or expense have been spared in the compilation and publication of this volume, and its elaborateness substantiates the statement.

In conclusion the publisher wishes to thank many patrons for their encouragement and support, and subscribes himself:

Very sincerely,

EDWARD N. BUCK.

EL PASO.

TO THOSE who love the ancient, El Paso is not without its charm: for while this fair metropolis of the great Southwest is still but a lusty youth, having not yet abandoned knee breeches and long stockings, the Mexican town immediately across the river was established as a mission station by Espejo in 1584, though some trace its founding as far back as 1549. This was more than half a century prior to the founding of Jamestown in Virginia (1607) and nearly three-quarters of a century before 1620, when the Puritans in the Mayflower landed at Plymouth Rock, Massachusetts. It was even sixteen years before the Spaniards made permanent settlement at Sun Augustine, Fla., (1565), causing that place to be the first town within the boundary of the present United States to be inhabited by Europeans.

But the land on the north side of the Rio Grande, where the City of El Paso now stands, belonged to the province of New Mexico, and so continued till after the close of the Mexican war.

When Texas gained her independence from Mexico, in 1836, she new republic claimed as her patrimony, amongst other lands, all that part of New Mexico lying east of the Rio Grande; and when, in 1845, Texas became the twenty-ninth state of the American Union, her claim was adopted by the United States government. This was one of the grounds of the Mexican war. By the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, in 1848, Mexico ceded to our government the remaining part of New Mexico, parts of Colorado and Wyoming, and all of California, Utah, Nevada and Arizona. Subsequently Texas received $10,000,000 from the general government as compensation for her claim upon the eastern part of New Mexico. As the southern boundary of that Territory was made to fall a few miles to the north of where El Paso now stands, it thus came about that the future metropolis of the Southwest became a part of the State of Texas.

The site of the present city was granted in 1827, by the Mexican government, to Juan Maria Ponce de Leon, a wealthy and enterprising citizen of Paso del Norte, now the City of Juarez, who spent... the next twenty years in bringing his property into a high and profitable state of cultivation, the estate being known as "Ponce Rancho." After the coming of the American troops under General Sterling Price, who invaded Mexico through El Paso in 1847, Franklin Countze made a conditional purchase of the Ponce ranch; and the little village which began to form, as well as the magnificent mountain just to the north, received the name of Franklin. But in a few months Countze abandoned the purchase, leaving for California, and the village resumed the name of El Paso.

For the next four or-five years things continued as they had been, the proprietor of the property living in Paso del Norte; but in 1853 "Uncle Billy" Smith, who had long been in the employ of Don Juan, became the first American owner by purchasing the estate from the widow and daughter of the lately deceased proprietor.
In 1857 a syndicate was formed by Judge J. F. Crosby, still an honored and progressive citizen, and some 40 acres were purchased, surveyed and platted under the direction of Anson Mills. This original town site is still known on all official records as the "Mills map."

The national contentions preceding the civil war, the war itself and the subsequent period of reconstruction brought El Paso with but little growth down to 1871, when the state legislature granted a charter and the first town government was formed by the people. Unfortunately the official records of those early days have been lost and the personnel of that first administration cannot be given. However, it was in the day of small things, for even in 1878 the population of the place was put at about 200, of whom one-fourth were Americans, the remainder being Mexicans.

But the day of redemption was drawing nigh. The great northern republic was advancing westward with the leaps of a giant.
The southern republic was shaking itself free from the enmeshing restraints of anarchy, revolution and military despotism. And El Paso lay as the natural gateway between these empires. The railroads, forerunners of civilization's advance, espied El Paso's importance, and at once pointed their progress towards the City of the Pass. The Southern Pacific, seeking an eastern and southeastern exit for the growing commerce of the Golden State, flung out its bands of steel and bound El Paso to the Pacific, reaching here as the first road on May 12, 1881. The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, which had spanned New Mexico from the Missouri river, was but three weeks later, coming in on June 2. The following January brought the Texas & Pacific from the east. A year later, January 1883, saw the arrival of the Galveston, Harrisburg & San Antonio, thus placing El Paso about midway between the Gulf of Mexico and the Pacific ocean; while in April of 1884 the Mexican Central, great trunk line of the Southern republic, came up from the City of Mexico, putting the pass city on the Imperial highway of nations, and giving her direct communication with the four corners of the North American con-
BUCK'S DIRECTORY OF EL PASO.

By these roads El Paso was placed about equally distant between San Francisco, St. Louis, New Orleans and Mexico City.

Three other roads, more local in character, have since been added: The Pecos Valley & Northwestern, reaching the city over the Texas & Pacific, and giving access to the second largest valley in New Mexico; the El Paso & Northwestern, opening the city to the heart of central New Mexico; and the Rio Grande, Sierra Madre & Pacific, making tributary to El Paso the best parts of Northwestern Mexico. These eight roads, considering the scope and extent of country they command, make El Paso the greatest railroad center of the entire country. But more of these roads hereafter.

EL PASO'S GROWTH.

The growth of El Paso is that with which we have especially to do at this particular place, and that growth can be shown by increase alike in population and in assessed valuation of taxable property. It may be remembered that in 1878 the population of the town is stated to have been about 200. By the census of 1870 the population of the county is put down at 5271. Ten years afterward, or in 1880, the county population had increased to 3564, or a gain of 175. If the entire increase be credited to the town, the population of the latter in 1880 could not have exceeded 375 or 400. At the next census, 1890, the population of the country had become 16,278, of which 11,000 were set down to the city—a gain in ten years of 10,000 or more than 1000 for each year of the decade, the total gain for the time being 265 per cent.

It is true that the government census for 1900 gave the city but 16,000 residents, or about 500 more than was given by the census of 1890. But the absurdity of this count is manifest to every one who visits El Paso, and is supremely ludicrous to those who have resided here during the last decade. The directory enumeration and the school census equally show how imperfectly was taken the national census, while the experience of several thousand confirms the statement that in the most thickly populated parts of the town many blocks were never visited by the enumerators. The population of El Paso did without doubt more than double during the last decade, and unless all indications prove false, it may safely be asserted that the increase during 1900-1901 has been the most remarkable known in the history of the place. Conservative estimate cannot be far wrong in putting El Paso's present population at fully 30,000.

INCREASE IN PROPERTY VALUES.

But the growth of the city is shown with equal satisfaction by the increase in property values. In 1877 El Paso property was assessed but $418,200. In five years it grew to $1,047,420. By 1894, or during twelve years, it increased to $5,052,606. For March, 1898, city property was listed at $5,283,925. It may be stated that since 1874 the tendency has been to lower assessed values and increase the percentum of tax levy, the requisite revenue being as readily raised in that way as by augmenting the value and diminishing the levy. Hence, the real value of assessable property in El Paso, March 1898, could not be estimated at less than $7,315,233. From that time until March 1, 1899, 315 building permits were issued, calling for edifícies to cost $255,350. This amount, together with the increase of value in the lots built upon as well as the value of vacant lots which was augmented by the demand for building sites, did not fail to make the value of El Paso assessable property little if any short of $8,000,000 at the beginning of the city’s fiscal year, March, 1899. The Directory last year stated:

"At the beginning of the fiscal year, March, 1900, the assessor’s office shows an aggregate of assessable property for El Paso amounting to about $6,600,000. The exact figures have not yet been rendered.

At the usual rate of placing values for assessment, three-fourths of actual value, this would give El Paso in March last, at low estimate, a property valuation of nearly $8,000,000, which has since increased to more than $10,000,000."

For the present fiscal year, March, 1901, the city assessor’s rolls give $8,300,000, which by the previous method of calculation would give not less than $11,100,000 in real value. Between that and the present time, (the latter part of November, 1901), building permits have been issued amounting to $290,000. These do not include $75,000 expended on public school buildings, $25,000 for the Armour Packing company’s warehouse, $20,000 for E. P. & N. R. depot; the large expenditures in constructing the electric car line and enlarging the International power plant, the construction of the Federal copper smelter, which though without the city limits is virtually at the doors, the enlargement of the El Paso smelter, $50,000 expended on a second telephone system, these and other things subsequently to be mentioned, make El Paso property today above rather than below $12,000,000.

THOSE BUILDING PERMITS.

But the building permits themselves show how vigorous has been the city’s growth in the last four years. Commencing with November, 1897, when full records of such permits began to be kept, we find the following:

Two months, 1897, 91 permits calling for $77,242
Twelve months, 1898, 328 permits calling for 269,789
Twelve months, 1899, 321 permits calling for 518,317
Twelve months, 1900, 300 permits calling for 422,732
Ten months, 1901, 324 permits calling for 499,384

Total 48 months, 1364 permits $1,784,584

Nor does this show the real growth of the city, since in no instance did the cost of the buildings fall short of one-third more than that estimated in the permits; while, as already stated, much:
The fiscal report of El Paso's condition at the present time would show:

There has been no default ever made on any bonds heretofore issued by the city, nor is there any controversy or litigation concerning its property or indebtedness.

On January 9, 1901, by order of the people at a special election, there was offered El Paso school bonds to the amount of $75,000, bearing 5 per cent interest, due in forty years but payable at the option of the city after twenty years, and to yield not less than par and accumulated interest without commission. It is indicative of the city's excellent credit that these bonds not only yielded the full face value of $75,000, but a premium of $8,000 besides.

CITY'S PRESENT CONDITION.

The present condition of El Paso is altogether satisfactory. The city is of stately appearance, compactly built, residence and business portion alike consisting of handsome streets, lined with tasteful buildings constructed almost exclusively of stone and brick.

A brief enumeration of what the city boasts may be thus expressed: Three national and a private bank, one natatorium, two express companies, eight railroads, four international bridges, two ice factories, two electric light plants, two telephone exchanges, gas works, street cars, in process of change to an electric car line, water works, $150,000 custom house, $150,000 court house, $100,000 office building lately changed to an elegant hotel, handsome public school buildings, private schools, commercial schools, fire department headquarters, new city hall erected at a cost of $50,000, county jail costing $20,000, agencies of all large life and fire insurance companies, fifteen wholesale merchandising houses, one wholesale hardware house, one wholesale liquor establishments, four brewery agencies, six livery stables and transfer companies, one international stock exchange, four lumber companies, five dealers in fuel and feed, twenty hotels, twenty-six restaurants, sixty lodging houses, while several hundred families have from one to three furnished rooms each for rent, and many others take a few boarders. There are two steam laundries and many Chinese washing places, three brick companies, two foundries and machine companies, bicycle factories, two smelters, a mine and smelter supply company, and hundreds of retail dealers in the necessities and luxuries of life. There are also some fifty odd incorporations with a combined capitalization of more than $10,000,000.

A large and handsome opera house draws the best of amusements; two bands and an orchestra besides many private performers render the supply of music inexhaustible, while a vaudeville gives entertainment for those thus inclined. Two free concerts a week, during the greater part of the year, are given in the plaza park.

Nineteen churches afford ample choice to the devout; consisting as they do of six Methodist, three Baptist, two Catholic, and one each of the Christian, Spiritualist, Congregational, Episcopal, Hebrew, Lutheran, Presbyterian and Salvation Army; while thirty-three church societies give full scope to benevolent activities.

LODGES AND SOCIETIES.

There are three K. of P. lodges, three Masonic lodges, five organizations of Odd Fellows, one lodge of Elks, Fraternal Order of Eagles, Catholic Knights of America, Court of Foresters, Council of National Union, two lodges A. O. U. W., Knights and Ladies of
Sierra Madre Line
El Paso to Casas Grandes, Mex.

BUCK'S DIRECTORY OF EL PASO.

The daily press is represented by the Herald, Times and News; the weekly by the Industrial Record, the Miner and Manufacturer and Monday Morning Independent, with three Spanish papers, El Monitor, El Progressista and El Globo. During school term, a periodical by the high school graduating class is usually published monthly.

Of the seventy-two streets eight are avenues, thirteen are numbered and the remainder are named. A majority of them are divided into north and south or east and west.

PUBLIC AND PRIVATE SCHOOLS.

The State of Texas is justly proud of her schools and her school system, as well as of the ample patrimony wise legislation has set aside for the education of the young. Nor has any place equipped herself more thoroughly in these particulars than has El Paso.

The number of school children in this city at the beginning of the present school year, by careful and official enumeration, was 2,822, or about 100 more than during the previous year. Last year 55 teachers were employed, while this year there are 51 beside the superintendent, Prof. G. P. Putnam. The schools consist of a kindergarten, a high school and six graded or ward schools, while the lots have been purchased and $10,000 is now in the treasury for the building of a seventh. One school is devoted to Mexican children and another for the exclusive use of colored schools. The teachers in the last are themselves negroes of good character and scholarly attainments.

The city has during the present year expended $75,000 in the erection of the high school building and for the benefit of the ward school structures. This betterment consisted of large additions to the buildings, the purchase of desks and pedagogical appliances, and the placing of ample steam heating apparatus in each of the houses; in these improvements the Mexican and colored schools shared equally with others.
The new high school building occupies an entire block of ground, bounded by North Kansas, North Campbell, Arizona and Nevada streets. The electric car line will run within three blocks of this school as soon as the tracks can be laid. The edifice consists of three stories and contains 10 rooms. The material is brick and the architectural design is attractive and convenient. On the ground floor three rooms are devoted to the department of physical science; the other three supply closets and boiler space. Five rooms in each of the remaining stories are assigned to the usual high school classes.

The income for the public schools of El Paso for the current year will be a little over $50,000, of which amount $13,500 will come from the state and about $37,000 from the city. This enables the board of education to pay liberal salaries and thereby to secure teachers of experience, capacity and attainments. This they have done, and the public schools here are to be commended for the personnel of the faculty even more than upon the excellence of their material accessories.

Among private schools are the International Business College, the Sacred Heart parish school, St. Joseph's academy for girls and the El Paso Normal and Commercial college, all of which are well conducted, have able corps of teachers and afford ample opportunities for instruction in their respective specialties.

PROOF OF PROSPERITY.

El Passans no less than the outside world look with wonder on the marvelous growth of the city in the last three years, not the least marvelous feature being that it went steadily and evenly on. Architect, builder and mechanic had all that they could do, and no one needed to go without work. In thirty-six months, the exchange of real estate has run up into many millions, while the permits for building have exceeded 1000, calling for an outlay of about $2,000,000 more.

The opinion seems incontrovertible that never has El Paso had such magnificent prospects as those which cluster about her today, and that her growth in the immediate future will dwarf into comparative insignificance the astonishing progress of the last few years.

With all her nearly 100 hotels and lodging houses, and with all the rented rooms in private families, and despite the immense amount of building which has taken place, room and residence rents have not declined, but are higher today than they were four years ago. To get good rooms well in is almost impossible, while to secure a house one must needs rent it nearly as soon as the foundations are laid, or else must wait for weeks till some house becomes vacant by the tenant moving into another just completed. Fifteen dollars, $20 or even $25, are not considered high per month for two furnished rooms, while $5 for each room is the customary price for unfurnished.

Among other evidences of growing prosperity, which may here be incidentally mentioned, are: A second telephone exchange, the lines of which are being placed under ground, and which when finished will show an investment of $100,000. The construction of an electric car line, connecting the city and Juarez, Mex., and the heart of the city with its suburbs, and which contemplates constructing pleasure resorts near the city to be reached by its own lines. This enterprise has already invested heavily in El Paso property, and the total of its expenditures will easily reach half a million.

The Armour Packing company has selected El Paso as one of its chief points of distribution, and has its warehouse and cold storage plant well under construction. This is an enterprise which runs up largely into the thousands of dollars. The Swift Packing company also has an agency in the city, while they have announced their intention of following the example set by the Armours. During the present year each of the ice factories in El Paso has found it necessary to add materially to its building and to largely increase the capacity of its plant, the increasing population and the consequent growth of business rendering these enlargements imperative.

The Federal Copper company during the year has built its smelter in an eastern suburb of the city, and has entered upon a prosperous career as a permanent factor in the development of El Paso's prosperity. It employs 200 men, and represents an investment of $150,000. The El Paso smelter having become a property of the American Smelting & Refining company, its capacity is in process of enlargement. In the early part of the coming year this enterprise will blow in. At that time its capacity will be 30,000 tons daily. It will employ 1200 men and have a monthly payroll of $65,000. It represents an investment of $300,000.

In the latter part of last year the Mill, Mine & Smelter Supply House, Mr. Juan Creel of Chihuahua, Mex., being the chief owner, was sold to the Mine & Smelter Supply company, which has houses in Denver, Salt Lake City, El Paso and Mexico City. The coming of such a company was justly regarded at the time as promising of much benefit to this community, and as especially indicative of growing realization of El Paso's increasing importance on the part of eastern capitalists. Nor has this conclusion proven to be ill founded. But recently, Mr. Seep, connected with the Standard Oil people, has purchased a half interest in the Mine & Smelter Supply company, and he and President Carey of that company have purchased a half interest in the El Paso Foundry & Machine company, paying therefor $50,000. Half of this amount will go at once to the betterment of the plant, which will continue to be enlarged as its business may require. This purchase means that much of the mining machinery handled by the Mine and Smelter Supply com-
Other indications of El Paso's prosperity and progress are to be found in the coming of the Rock Island railroad and the construction of the El Paso & Southwestern, or Bisbee route. But these will be considered under the head of railroads, as their more appropriate place.

PERMANENT NOT EPHEMERAL.

Of course, the advantages which brought this city to her condition of present prosperity will ever remain, continuing to administer to her rapid increase in wealth and population, for these advantages are natural and abiding, not artificial and temporary. Briefly mentioned they are:

- Her isolated condition; no present or prospective rival within hundreds of miles in any direction.
- Her tributary mineral wealth, lying in New Mexico, Arizona, Mexico and Texas, and sweeping in exhaustless riches over a radius of several hundred miles.
- Her unexcelled climate, enviable in its health record, and producing a year which needs no interruption of labor from extremes of season or temperature.
- Her position of chief point of exchange in the commerce of two great countries—the United States and Mexico—both developing their matchless patrimonies with a rapidity and upon a scale of magnitude never before equaled in the history of the world.
- Her wide extent of pasture lands, vast in area and unsurpassed in all the world for salubrity of climate and richness of range, conducing to the largest percentage of profit at the least percentage of expense, which, added to the accompanying by-products of wool, hides and pelts, make stock raising one of the leading as well as most profitable industries of the section.

One other advantage El Paso has, though as yet undeveloped—her agricultural possibilities. Cheap food is essential to dense population and El Paso lies in a valley which can be made to feed an empire. Yet a little while and this possibility will become an astonishing reality. Soil and season will be perfected by artificial application of water, and El Paso will become as noted for its cheapness of living as it now is for its climate, healthfulness, mineral wealth and commercial advantages.

GROUND OF GROWTH.

When a stranger arrives in El Paso, his first emotion is one of amazement at what he finds. The busy throngs which crowd the streets from early morn till late at night; the long blocks of stores to and from which the people are passing; the many hotels, lodging houses and furnished rooms at which he seeks in vain for entertainment; the daily coming of seven trains with their never-failing cargoes of visitors—all these things leave no doubt in his mind that El Paso is a thriving... prosperous, busy city, a place of great business-activity and promise. Then comes the invariable question, What is the source of El Paso's prosperity? What are the grounds of her marvelous growth? What is there to make so promising a place at this particular locality? The answer to these questions will be developed in the following articles:

To civilized man there have been from time immemorial, four chief fields of activity. These are agriculture, mining, manufacture and commerce. The first two have to do with the production of raw material directly from nature; the third transformed this material into other and more desirable conditions, while commerce interchanges the commodities of different sections, communities and individuals. Stock raising is a branch of agriculture, while the professions—law, medicine, divinity, literature, art and teaching—belong distinctly to the department of commerce, as do all kinds of barter, trade or merchandising.

These different departments of activity had a simultaneous origin with primeval man. The forests and the rivers first supplied his food, gradually merging into stock raising as certain classes of animals were domesticated and taught to propagate their species in captivity. The preservation of certain favorite nuts, fruits, berries and seeds, and the effort to increase the supply, was the origin of husbandry. When the rude hunter or warrior searched in the earth for the flint to tip his arrow, or the obsidian to arm his club, or the colored clay to paint his person, mining had its birth. The making of the bow and arrows, or the sewing together of skins to supply clothing, were among the first steps in manufacture; while the exchange of some superfluous article for another more needed or desired was the dawn of commerce. It may be added that the full possession of any one of these in connection with commerce, is amply sufficient to sustain a city. El Paso, however, may boast of them all, and it is by their future development her greatness is assured.

THE MAN WITH THE HOE.

El Paso's Agricultural Resources are Vast, But Their Development is Backward.

Cheap food supplies are one of the essentials to the upbuilding of any place, the term cheap being used in a comparative sense to indicate the cost of food as related to wages. The less the food of a family costs, the more the wage-earner will have remaining for other expenses. The more the food costs the less he can devote to other things, the wage being the same in each instance. Neither can food be cheap when brought from a distance. To meet the best demands for fresh and cheap food, the growing town must have tributary to it a re-

THE VALLEY OF THE RIO GRANDE,

than which no richer agricultural country can be found in America.

If El Paso be taken as the center and an immense circle be described, having a diameter of a thousand miles, the country thus enclosed will be found to partake of the same general character, whether it lies in Mexico, Texas, New Mexico or Arizona. Briefly it may be said to consist of mountain ranges, separated by narrow valleys along the streams; the valleys being bordered by high table lands or rolling plains. The mountains are generally mineralized, the valleys are excellent for cultivation, while the plains give sustenance to thousands of flocks and herds. Through this section, bounded by our imaginary circle, runs

THE VALLEY OF THE RIO GRANDE,

than which no richer agricultural country can be found in America.

As the Euphrates and the Tigris made the great cities of Babylon and Nineveh, as the Nile has made Egypt for the last 10,000 or 15,000 years, and will continue to make it a land of infinite wealth for all time to come, so the Rio Grande must make El Paso a city of vast wealth and ample population. In a few years El Paso will sit as a queen in the midst of her gardens and orchards and vineyards, receiving therefrom food for thousands, and growing rich and beautiful and happy thereby.

The conditions are ideal. Climate and soil are unsurpassed, while the long growing season and ceaseless sunshine give to all crops the largest yield and the best quality, flavor and certainty of success.
The grapes grown in the valley below town have a reputation as wide the continent and a market demand which cannot be met. Eastern buyers take the pear crop as it stands upon the trees, harvesting and marketing for themselves. One grower in that section this year alone shipped ten car loads. The apples and peaches of the Mesilla valley, as a section of the valley above town is generally known, are nearly always sold before they have matured, while every kind of vegetable and melon thrives, in both parts of the valley as they do nowhere else even in the Southwest.

Why, then, has not El Paso already become the queen of gardens and orchards? The answer is contained in three words—lack of water. The annual rainfall of about three-quarters of an inch a month cannot mature crops. Consequently recourse must be had to irrigation. Formerly, the waters of the river were ample for irrigating the lands upon its banks. It is estimated that a few years ago 20,000 people lived in the valley below town, while a large number had prosperous farms, vineyards and orchards in the valley above. Such is no longer the case. Year by year the quantity of water has diminished, and year by year the agricultural area has been contracted.

This is easily explained. The water of the Rio Grande is derived in the spring and summer from the melting snows on the water sheds of Central Colorado. By the increase of farming in Southern Colorado and Northern New Mexico, year by year more and more of this water has been diverted to those sections, leaving less and less for the valley about El Paso. But this condition is not without remedy.

WHAT MUST BE DONE.

The demand of El Paso for larger supply of farm products is daily increasing, and the valley of the Rio Grande is too rich in possibilities to permit of its remaining desert. Two remedies are proposed. One is the impounding of the flood waters. It is claimed, and doubtless with truth, that the water flowing down the river is still ample for the irrigation of the entire valley, did it come at the right season. This it does not do. Hence, the plan is to build dams and construct reservoirs in which the flood waters may be held until needed, and from which the waters may be let upon the fields in due season.

Two such schemes have been proposed on a large scale. One is known as the Elephant Butte dam, and is to be constructed at a point about 100 miles above El Paso. It is contended that the waters there impounded would be ample to irrigate not only all the valley lands between the dam and El Paso, but also an equal quantity south of the city. This scheme is backed by English capital, and for several years the United States government has been engaged in the courts attempting to invalidate the grant previously made to the company on the ground that such construction and use of water would be unfair and injurious to Mexico, since it would deprive the valley on their side of the river below El Paso of all use of the water. So far the government has succeeded only in delaying construction, without making good its contentions.

The second scheme is known as the International dam, and contemplates the construction of a dam and reservoir but a few miles above El Paso, the governments of the United States and Mexico to unite in the expense and to share in the benefits. This plan is approved by Mexico; and though its promoters have not heretofore succeeded in getting favorable action by the American Congress, they have large hopes of success from the Congress now in session.

A SECOND PLAN.

But the impounding of water is by no means the only method of irrigating the valley, and many regard it as by no means the best. It is pretty generally accepted that beneath the bed of the Rio Grande there flows as large a river as that which lies within its visible banks, with the difference in favor of the unseen stream that its flow is constant, unaffected by floods or droughts. To reach this river and bring it to the surface, that its waters may irrigate the thirsty crops and save them from perishing, wells must be sunk and pumping appliances em-played. This has already been done at a number of places, on a larger or smaller scale and with invariable success.

If, however, this method is to be used for reclaiming the valley, such places must be multiplied many hundredfold. Already the thoughts of agriculturalists are turning in that direction; and to accelerate the movement, the management of the Midwinter Carnival, to be held in El Paso, January 14-18, 1902, and the El Paso Chamber of Commerce have invited the pump makers of America to make at that time and place an exhibit of their various plans for pumping machinery.

There can be no doubt that one or both of the methods herein set forth will in a few years be in active operation, making the Rio Grande valley one of the garden spots of the world supporting a dense population and rendering El Paso the most desirable home town in America.

OTHER AGRICULTURAL SECTIONS.

But the Rio Grande valley is only one among several of El Paso's agricultural assets. The El Paso & Northeastern railroad has placed tributary to the city varied and extensive sections in the Sacramento mountains, in the counties of Otero and Lincoln, New Mexico.
Here fruits and vegetables, grasses and grains are raised in great quantities and excellence by such as have turned their attention in that direction. The number thus engaged is yearly growing larger and the farm products of that country are finding their way to the El Paso market. The Alamogordo Improvement company is contributing to this result by selling in forty acre tracts, at merely nominal prices, farming lands from which has been removed the merchantable timber.

From this section alone, in a few years El Paso's food supply will be largely increased, for the well watered valleys are numerous, while much of the mountain uplands can be made to produce magnificent crops without irrigation.

The Pecos valley, in Southeastern New Mexico, is probably the best watered section of the entire territory, while for fruits, vegetables, grains, grasses and cattle it stands without a rival. At present it contributes but little of its products to the market of El Paso, this city being reached only by a circuitous route through Pecos City, Tex.

But when a direct line shall have been built between El Paso and Roswell, as no doubt will be done at no distant day, the whole of that magnificent valley will become tributary to the growth of this city.

One other section must be mentioned in this connection. It is the country in Mexico penetrated by the Rio Grande, Sierra Madre & Pacific railroad, more generally called the Sierra Madre route.

The resources of that wonderful country are manifold and diversified. The valleys are well watered, with clear, sparkling water, in numerous streams, allowing irrigation for all classes of vegetation.
The black gramma grass predominates, although there are several other varieties. This affords ample pasturage for millions of cattle and sheep.
Sierra Madre Line

El Paso to Casas Grandes, Mex.

BUCK'S DIRECTORY OF EL PASO.

And by way of parenthesis it might be mentioned in this connection that some of the largest cattle ranches in the republic are located along the route of this road.

Around Colonia Juárez, where some 4000 Mormons have settled, and at the neighboring place of Dubian, a magnificent agricultural and fruit country has been developed. Colonia Juárez having two flourishing canneries, where peaches, pears, grapes and vegetables are put up on a large scale.

Within forty miles of Casas Grandes are inexhaustible forests of high grade pine, where sawmills must soon be established, thus producing the desired condition that much of the money spent for lumber, now sent out of the country forever, will then be disbursed in a section tributary to this city, thus finding its way back again to the source whence it emanated.

After about eighty miles from this city the character of the country penetrated by this line radically changes. The rainfall is more frequent and heavy, the grasses better and more abundant, and the cattle industry increases in extent and value. Many ranches reached by this road can turn out fat cattle any day of the year, which is a fact that can be stated of few countries of the world. Tributary to this road are many parts of the Terrazas ranch, the largest body of land devoted by one individual to the purpose of cattle breeding to be found on the face of the earth. It is stated that one can travel 250 miles in a straight line and never leave the land of Sr. Terrazas.

STOCK INDUSTRY.

This leads to the notice of the stock industry as the second branch of agricultural resource. The cattle imported into El Paso from Mexico in 1898 were valued at $4,300, in 1899 at $45,000, in 1900 at $10,500, to July 1, 1901, at $40,000, and from that to the present at about $5,000, making the present much the largest year of the last four. All the cattle have been from the state of Chihuahua and much the greater part of them have been brought in on the Sierra Madre line.

One rancher on that line this year sent to El Paso 25 car loads of Alfalfa. Besides these cattle imported from Mexico, large numbers of thoroughbred cattle have been exported to that country. These have passed through El Paso, almost invariably stopping here for several days before being transferred across the river. Then, too, El Paso has been the center of a considerable cattle trade between Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California. The importance of this growing trade is evidenced by the fact that El Paso now has the following firms engaged in this business: The El Paso Livestock Commission company, Chas. F. Hunt, manager; Universal, Baird & Patterson, dealers in cattle; W. J. Cox & Co., exporters of Herefords and general dealers in live stock; Newman & Austin; the Southwestern Livestock Commission company; and the International Stock Exchange. No doubt to these gentlemen is largely due the impetus given to this important in-Manufactures, Though in Their Infancy, Aid El Paso's March to Wealth.

El Paso ships her hides and pelts and buys her leather. She ships her wool and buys back blankets. She ships her fruit and purchases canned goods. She sells her cattle and buys Kansas City slaughtered beef. And yet she is not without the beginning of factories. Where so much building has been done in so short a time those factories the product of which go to the erection of houses could not be absent. Hence, El Paso has four brick yards, with aggregated capital stock of $145,000; five planing mills, owned respectively by Frank Powers, J. J. Crawford, T. J. Holland, T. J. Kerr and L. W.霍夫韦克; and the finest factory for lime in the Southwest. In addition are the El Paso Novelty Works, a carriage factory, three bottling works, two bookbinders, one boot and shoe factory, one saddlery and harness factory, four cigar factories, two ice factories, two electric light and power plants, gas works, two confectionery factories, three cornice works, two foundry and machine works, two laundries, one mattress factory, one shirt and overall factory, two mineral water factories, and two smelters. Besides these each of the railroads has its shops, employing blacksmiths, woodworkers, boilermakers, tannery workers, and machinists, with their various helpers and apprentices, thus making the number of El Paso people employed in factory life little, if any, short of 2000.

In this list are included only those places where machinery is used, thus excluding tailoring, dressmaking, shoemaking, saddle and harness making, and a number of other vocations where machinery is not used at all, or if a sewing machine be run it is by foot power of the operator. The list is neither long nor imposing, while it is of greater interest in what it omits than in what it contains. Nevertheless it shows that El Paso has started in this great line of development, and no doubt her progress will soon be both rapid and satisfactory.

What has hitherto militated against growth in this direction has been the scarcity of fuel and the consequent expense in its use. There are wide stretches of territory in West Texas, Northern Mexico,
Federal Building

A Forest Nook at Cloudcroft
Southern Arizona and Southwestern New Mexico where coal has been found, or else in limited areas, of faulty seams and poor quality. The railroads have furnished a demand greater than the supply, thus leaving but little for domestic use and next to none for manufacturing purposes. But there is now a prospect of great improvement in this particular. The El Paso & Northeastern road has reached and made tributary some of the finest coal lands in Southern New Mexico, while now it is stretching its tentacles farther and in a few months will be pouring into this market the black diamonds from its recent purchases in Central New Mexico, which are said to be as vast in extent as they are excellent in quality.

But the greatest relief will undoubtedly come from the oil discoveries at Beaumont, Tex., as well as those in California and Mexico, together with what is hoped may prove a magnificent oil field almost at our own doors. A number of railroads, mines, mills, smelters and factories in the Southwest have already announced their adoption of oil for fuel, while others no doubt will speedily follow the example. This cannot but result in greatly reducing the demand for coal, with the consequent fall in its price, thus enabling many manufacturing enterprises to be conducted here at a profit, which hitherto high priced fuel has prevented. Undoubtedly El Paso's growth in factories will be very great during the present decade.

THE MAN WITH THE DRILL

El Paso, as a Great Mining Center, Gathers in Ore and Sends Out Machinery and Supplies.

As previously stated, taking El Paso as the center and with a diameter of 1000 miles, a circle may be described, sweeping West Texas, Northern Mexico, Arizona and New Mexico; and throughout this vast area the same general character of country is found to prevail, occasionally modified, of course, by local peculiarities.

This consists of mineralized mountain ranges, grass-covered table lands, and valleys of great fertility, wherever water can be applied in irrigation.

The mineral in this section thus described comprises chiefly gold, silver, lead, copper, iron, tin, zinc and quicksilver, with precious and building stones, marble and coal. More or less of these have been found within the circle in every direction from El Paso; but the location of the developed and paying properties seem to have been the result of chance selection rather than of any partiality of nature in the bestowing of greater gifts on certain portions than on others. Hence, while within the circle enough has been done to show the region to be ONE of the richest in the world, it virtually remains today a virgin territory, inviting the prospector alike with the capitalist.

Nor is this invitation remaining unheeded. The prospector is abroad with his pick and grub-stake. Development work is rapidly being pushed according to law. Leases are making and claims are being formed. Mines are sold and mining companies are being formed. Ores are shipped and dividends declared. New machinery is purchased and old machinery is enlarged. The assayer is busy, the sampler is overcrowded, the concentrator is working over hours, the smelter is behind with its orders, the dealer in mine, mill and smelter supplies increases his force of clerks, the railroads are kept busy and every description of tradesman catering to the wants or pleasure of the mining classes feels the effects of the wondrous activity. Such is the condition of El Paso’s tributary territory, and the result upon El Paso is patent to the observation of any one.

This accounts for the great growth which has characterized El Paso during the last four years—a growth as substantial as it has been rapid and continuous. No one by any means forgets the obligations which El Paso is under to her other avenues of wealth—her railways, her climate, her tributary stock ranges, and her position as American gateway to the Republic of Mexico. All these have played their part in making El Paso the marvel of the Southwest, and each will continue to contribute to the coming of that Greater El Paso, the splendor of which looms so definitely in the very foreground of the future.

Even without mining this would be a good town. The healthful climate would attract the transient to almost the same extent in which they now crowd within her gates. The contiguous ranches would still need their supplies and their facilities for shipping, making active demand in many lines of commerce. This city would still be the chief gateway of the two rapidly growing nations, the traffic of which would leave its tell as it passed. The large list of railway employes with the heavy monthly payments of wages and salaries would make demands for numerous and active retail dealers, and in this line things would be as much as they are today, but doubtless on a smaller scale; for who can doubt that while without her railroads giving access to the mining sections El Paso would not be a mining center at all, yet on the other hand, but for the ores to haul and the mining machinery and supplies demanded in the multiplicity of mining camps, the railroads would have greatly reduced pay roll and list of employees. Therefore the belief may be freely expressed that the future of this city is more dependent upon the fact of her being a great mining center than it is upon her remaining advantages, vast and varied as they are.

WHEN GROWTH BEGAN.

It is undeniable that the remarkable growth of El Paso began with the revival of the mining industries along the lines of the Southern Pacific, the Texas & Pacific, the Santa Fe and the Mexican Central, and... that it has progressed in proportion as that industry in those sections has forged to the front. It is also beyond dispute that a marked and lasting impetus to that growth was given by the construction of the Sierra Madre and White Oaks routes and the opening to El Paso of the vast valuable mineral sections which they respectively penetrated. If El Paso has thus been built up by the growth of the mining industry in the sections penetrated by her several railroads there needs no further evidence that she is the common metropolis of those sections and must continue to grow as they continue to develop.

The wealth of these sections is absolutely beyond the power of estimation, the possibilities of their future development defies computation; but it is because of these facts that the well informed expect to see at the pass of the Rio Grande a city of 150,000 inhabitants in the next fifteen or twenty years.

In the aggregation of all these sections El Paso is the largest town. It is the only town which has direct communication with them all. It is the only town which has four, and soon will have five, and it may be six, competing railway systems leading to the great manufacturing centers and sources of supply in the United States, the same systems being among the largest and most important in the whole country. It is the only point through which northern Mexico can send its mineral products to the United States and through which it can receive in return the American machinery and other manufactured articles which it needs. Finally, El Paso is the only place in all these sections where ore and coal can be brought together with the least expenditure of time and the least outlay of money. This was true before the opening of the White Oak route and it will be more emphatically true as the coal fields of the Sacramento mountains shall be developed and marketed. Thus it will be seen that nature and art combined to prevent El Paso from having any rivals as the most absolute mining center of the great Southwest.

This field is so vast that merely to publish the names and locations of all the mineral properties it embraces would be to print a large volume composed entirely of names. Illustration rather than enumeration is all that can be attempted.

AN EIGHT-SPOKED WHEEL.

Eight railroads emanating from as many different points of the compass focus El Paso and give access to the territory from which she draws her wealth and to which she sends supplies. These are the Santa Fe, from the north, the White Oaks route from the northeast, the Texas & Pacific from the east, the G. H. & S. A. from the southeast, the Mexican Central from the south, the Sierra Madre from the southwest, the Bisbee from the west and the Southern Pacific from the west and northwest.

Nor must it be imagined that the influence of El Paso extends but a few score miles or so along any of these lines. Ore reaches this... place from the City of Mexico, distant 1224 miles, as well as from Parral, Jimenez, Rosarito, Chihuahua, and many other points on the great Mexican Central. In like manner ores reach here from points as far west as California, and as far to the north as the United Verde, near Springer, in the far northeastern part of New Mexico. Two additional facts must suffice. On the Yaqui river in the state of Sonora, Mexico, the Dura Mining company concentrates forty tons of ore per day. The concentrated ore is taken eighty miles by wagon to Ortiz, a station forty miles below Hermosillo, thence shipped by way of Nogales to El Paso, a distance of probably 600 miles. Fifteen miles from Arispe, the ancient capital of Sonora, is located the Chiepa mine, distant 600 miles or more from El Paso; yet the El Paso smelter in one year paid to the owners of the Chiepa more than one million dollars for ore shipped from that mine. Neither must it be forgotten that El Paso ships machinery and mine supplies to innumerable places from which ores are not received in return.

The portion of west Texas tributary to El Paso is a grazing country more generally than a mineral one, and yet in the sections lying along the Texas & Pacific and the Galveston, Harrisburg & San Antonio Important mining deposits have been found. Gold and silver abound in many districts. Mercury deposits are being exploited in Brewster county. The Shafter mine yields silver, the Dallas and Black shaft ore is copper, the Quitman mountains contain lead and zinc. Copper glance abounds near Abilene. In the Amagosa mountains near Ft. Hancock azurite has been found which yielded as high as 35 per cent. In addition, sulphur, coal, iron, brick, clay, cement and many other raw materials exist in large quantities.

Recently several parties brought to the city to be assayed a number of coal specimens, said to have been obtained not far from town and convenient to the railroad. Should these finds prove what is claimed for them, they will be of more value to El Paso than the discovery of several gold mines. More coal means cheaper fuel, and cheap fuel means more factories, smelters, mills, machine shops—in a word, greater prosperity in every department of El Paso's activity.

ALONG THE CENTRAL LINE.

Two roads—the Mexican Central and the Sierra Madre—connect El Paso with the vigorous young giant of the south. The Central is a great national system, about 2000 miles long, penetrating many sections, connecting many cities, subserving many purposes and advancing many interests. The Sierra Madre is a local feeder, 161 miles long, contributing almost entirely to the prosperity of El Paso. It would be impossible to speak intelligently of the mining districts reached by the Central, or to dilate upon the proportion of them made tributary to this city. Suffice it to say that 123 cars of ore have been known to arrive in El Paso over the Mexican Central in one day. It may be added, however, that the Central gives easy access to the City and State of Chihuahua, with which the relation of El Paso is more intimate and profitable than it is with any other state or city in the Mexican republic.

Chihuahua, capital of the largest state of the Republic of Mexico, is a city of 35,000 inhabitants, located on either side of the Rio Churiviscar and bordered on three sides by a low range of mountains.

The city proper was founded early in the seventeenth century by the Spaniards who worked the rich mines located in the surrounding mountains, some of which are being worked to this day and are renowned the world over for their enormous production. Famous among these are the mines in the Santa Eulalia district, fifteen miles east of the city, which have been worked constantly for three hundred years and are credited with an output of nearly two billion dollars. They are still active producers of the white metal, the daily output now being over three hundred tons, running from thirty per cent lead and forty ounces of silver to much higher values. In many places in and around the city there still remain to be seen the slag piles as unobiterated monuments of the industry of the ancient settlers.

The State of Chihuahua ranks first in the republic in mining; the monthly production of gold and silver bullion alone is over eight hundred thousand dollars. This does not include ores shipped to the smelters for treatment. Of this amount two hundred and fifty thousand dollars is exported to the United States and England.

The chief producers of silver bullion are Batopilas Mining Company, $180,000 per month; J. J. Waterson, Ocampo, $50,000; El Concho, $56,000; Pinos Altos, $42,000; Santa Eulalia, $38,000; Belen Mining Company, $25,000; El Refugio Mining & Milling Company, $24,000.

There are few exclusively gold producing properties in the state. Among the largest are La Gloria and El Oro Colorado, near Batopilas; Guazapares mines and Placer de Santo Domingo. The two former, statistics show, have produced an aggregate amount of $44,000 per month.

The principal mining camps of the state are Santa Eulalia, Parral, Jesus Maria, Batopilas, Guadalupe y Calvo, El Concho, Pinos Altos, Santa Barbara, Cusihuiriachic, Magistral, Dolores, Guazapares, Morelos, Urique, La Descubridora and Cerruitas. The Guazapares mines have produced an enormous amount of ore. It has lately been acquired by a strong American company which will operate upon an extensive scale.

The placer of Santo Domingo has been purchased by a foreign syndicate which is expending over $500,000 gold in machinery. The largest nuggets found in Mexico have been discovered in this district.

There are the principal mining districts where active opera-mineral, stock and lumber possibilities, that its development alone would be amply sufficient to support a city larger than El Paso. In a radius of 20 miles about Casas Grandes there are probably 15,000 people, of whom something like half are Americans. For Americans looking to that country for investments, it would be well they remember that the railroad offers facilities enabling them to take advantage of American markets, while themselves being on Mexican territory, handling Mexican money and paying Mexican prices.

The Corralitas interest owns the Candelario and San Pedro groups, the latter reached by a branch road four miles in length. Here are employed about 1000 men, working full time, day and night; and though this mine has been operated for more than a hundred years, it seems scarcely to have been touched, and bids fair to last one hundred years to come. The Cinco de Mayo, owned by General Hernandez, and valued at $1,000,000 in gold, the Sabinal district, the Santo Domingo mines, the Capucin group, the Erandito section, the San Joaquin group, the Bismarck, San Nicolas, the Buena Ventura mines, all these ranging from five to twenty miles in distance from points upon the Sierra Madre line, are shipping properties of gold, silver and lead ores. Some most promising copper prospects are being developed by men of means in the San Bias mountains, 55 miles from El Paso, located from 100 yards to three miles from the line of the road. Cheap freight and high grade ores should make these properties quite valuable.

Westward from Casas Grandes, at greater distance, as the main range of the Sierra Madre is reached higher grade ores are found. In the Pilares group one mine yielded $700,000 the first year after discovery, and now, after three years, it is keeping up its first year's record. In all 50 or 60 producing mines are in this section, and yet it is very apparent that the face of the country has scarcely been touched. The whole territory is in virgin state, even as regards prospecting.

As evidencing the importance of the two Mexican railways leading into El Paso, it may be stated that the imports of bullion, coin and ore, in silver and gold, and copper and lead ores, set forth by the El Paso custom house for 1899, amounted to $6,197,000. The ores imported for smelting reached 167,000 tons. To these were to be added $46,000 worth of cattle, $32,000 worth of hogs, $81,000 worth of fruits, and $37,000 worth of sugar and tobacco. The exports to Mexico at this point for the same year reached $5,000,000, coal being on the free list. For the year 1900, the customs house report for El Paso gives 4,175 entries of merchandise, $330,564.31 duties and tonnage tax, and $8,519,519 as value of exports. For the present year the report every way promises to be much larger. During the first three months of 1899 the shipment of machinery into Mexico was 20 per cent, or one-fifth, larger than it was during 1898. In like manner, the Sierra Madre in one week of last year brought from the San Pedro mines alone 110 cars of ore to El Paso for treatment.

One of the most promising properties reached by this road is MINAS DE DOS CABEZAS.

The property comprises a group of 27 pertenencias, 9 long and 3 wide, therefore covering an area equivalent to a parallelogram 2700 yards long by 300 wide. Within the past few months some 145 pertenencias have been denounced surrounding the original ground upon the east, west and south.

The discovery of this property, says a recent issue of the Industrial Record, was made some twelve years ago, although on the north extension an American had located ground some time previous to this. The ledge was located by following up rich float that had been carried for several miles down the canon that cuts the ledge.

The mines are situated in the extreme eastern portion of the district de Moctezuma in the state of Sonora, Mexico, and are only about five miles to the west of the Sonora-Chihuahua line. They are easily accessible by wagon from Casas Grandes in Chihuahua.

Like many other mines of Mexico this one has been worked with a view to secure the rich ores found near the surface without regard to developing depth or blocking out ore bodies. Consequently numerous tunnels, at no great depth, have been driven, in numerous parts of the properties, and such ore pockets, chimneys or chimneys as were encountered containing values sufficient for export, have been stoped out, the ore being shipped to El Paso for treatment.

The character of the ore differs, horn silver (silver chloride), ruby silver, native silver, galena and other forms have been encountered, and values have ranged as high as $10,000 per ton. The gold values run from a trace to 10 ounces per ton. Usually the higher the silver values the higher the gold. Lead and copper also exist, but the copper rarely exceeds 5 to 6 per cent.

Since the mine is being operated by the present management some practical attempt is being made to secure depth and ascertain if the ore values hold out with depth. In the new workings the ore has become entirely a sulphide, and the values are more uniform and range between 500 to 600 ounces in silver and 4 to 6 ounces in gold. A 3-compartment shaft is being sunk about 300 feet to the south of the ledge (the side of the dip), and it is contemplated to continue sinking until the vein is intersected. Levels will be established every 100 feet and drifts driven to cross cut the vein.

At present such ores as are of insufficient value for export which with present facilities for transportation is expensive, are left upon the dumps or in place, and it is contemplated to erect suitable reduction works for their economic treatment.

The mines give great promise, with economic and practical handling, of becoming one of the best producers in the northern portion of the republic.
BY THE BISBEE ROUTE.

As we swing further around the circle we reach the vast and valuable mineral sections penetrated by the latest of El Paso's railways, the El Paso & Southwestern, generally called the Bisbee route or the Phelps-Dodge railway. Nacozari and Cananea in Mexico, Bisbee, Clifton, Globe, Morenci in Arizona, and other camps too numerous to enumerate, sparkle as jewels of the highest value in the diadem which this road is placing upon El Paso's brow.

But perhaps the Clifton and Morenci sections are at present claiming the widest attention, two companies alone producing there some 40,000,000 pounds of copper last year. Clifton is the northern terminus of the Arizona & New Mexico railroad, of which Lordsburg, on the Southern Pacific, is the southern terminus. The two companies referred to are the Arizona Copper company at Clifton, and the Detroit Copper company at Morenci.

The plant of the Arizona Copper company is located at Clifton, and its mines are at Longefellow, Metealf and Coronada, all connected with the smelter by railroads owned and operated by the company. The plant has a capacity of 1000 tons a day, while the company employs about 1200 miners and 300 smelter men. The Detroit Copper company has its concentrating plant and smelter at Morenci, and is building the Morenci Southern road, which in a distance of 18 miles to Guthrie, on the Arizona & New Mexico road, is one of the finest pieces of engineering to be found in all the west. The owners of the Detroit Copper company, Phelps, Dodge & Co., of New York, are owners also of the Copper Queen at Bisbee, and of the Buffalo at Globe. Other properties in these districts are the Shannon mines, capitalized at $2,000,000; the Stevens group of 14 claims; the Morenci Copper company, the Arizona Lead company, the Copper Center group, the Markeen company's Maine and Mammoth mines, the Missing Link group, the Great Western properties, and other properties in Hickory gulches and Copper King mountain.

THE SOUTHERN PACIFIC.

Next in the line of progress the Southern Pacific spreads out to the west and northwest, connecting El Paso with Arizona and Western New Mexico. This is the most highly developed part of the city's tributary territory if it be not actually the richest. The year 1900 proved the banner one in Arizona's mineral activity, but the record will doubtless be broken during the present year, as activity has increased rather than diminished all along the line.

From Deming, N. M., westward, there is scarcely a station on the S. P. which is not an ore-shipper. Under such state of case one knows scarcely where to begin or where to end. The Tres Hermanos, lead and silver; Sugar, copper; Lordsburg, copper, gold and silver; Stein's Pass and San Simon, lead and silver, are sections well known. Especially is Lordsburg of local interest, since in that section El Paso-
THE SANTA FE’S CONTRIBUTION.

Two railroads pour New Mexico’s mineral riches into the lap of El Paso. One of these is the Santa Fe, which enters New Mexico on the northeast, penetrates to Albuquerque, the geographical center of the territory, and then dividing sends one branch westward through Arizona, and the other southward down the Rio Grande valley to El Paso and Deming. The other road is the El Paso & Northeastern, the White Oaks route, as it is called, El Paso’s youngest-born railway, which has shown itself a giant from its very birth.

New Mexico contains 80 distinct mineral districts embracing in her riches nearly all the useful and precious metals, building stones and gems. But her greatest value to El Paso lies in her apparently inexhaustible supply of coal, which El Paso and many parts of her tributary territory so badly need. From Raton, Cerrillos, Gallup, and occasionally other points, the Santa Fe has long met the demand, the price enhanced by the long haul. But now the White Oaks route has penetrated the Sacramento mountains and laid the vast coal fields of that section as it were at El Paso’s very doors. It cannot but be that as soon as properly developed for large shipments the product of this new section will reduce the price of fuel, at least for mining and manufacturing purposes. In that day no longer will the iron of the Jartilla district remain unutilized, nor will the immense product of the Hanover section go to Pueblo, Colo., for treatment, but El Paso will become as noted for the making of pig iron and for the product of its rolling mills as it is today for its handling of copper and of the more precious metals.

But the other mineral wealth of New Mexico must not be overlooked in this connection. Mention has already been made of that part of the territory tributary to the Southern Pacific, but that reached by the Santa Fe is greatly larger in area and more varied in products. In Grant county, around Silver City, this is especially true. The purchases of Pinos Altos by the Hearst estate has worked wonders in that section. Other properties are owned by the Golden Grant company; while the Houston & Thomas mine, the Deep Down and the Mountain Key are well known properties in the same noted gold camp. About Central, in the same county, are many more interests bearing gold, lead and copper. Here, too, is the famous Texas mine, owned by the Ryard Smelting & Milling company. In this same section is the famous copper camp of Santa Rita and the great iron and lead camp of Hanover. Then come the Copper Flat district, the Burro Mountain section, the turquoise mines of the Azure Mining company, and farther away, but in the same county, the great lead camp at Cook’s, operated by the El Paso...

Smelting company. Many properties are also to be found in the Mesilla, and Florida, Lake Valley, Hillsboro, Terra Blanca, Trujillo Creek and Crawford station near Deming constitute shipping points.

Further east Socorro county abounds in camps, while the Black and Cuchillo ranges further north contain valuable properties. Nearest P. A. Paso the Organ and San Andreas mountains contain many prospects and some very valuable properties, virtually at the very gate of this city. The mineral district extends from five miles south of Organ postoffice to some 85 miles or more north of the same point. It embraces well known properties such as the Bennett-Stephenson, the Torpedo and the Medico; while others of lesser fame, but of great promise are the Memphis, the Merriman, the Little Duck, Ben Nevis, San Augustine, Excelsior, Eclipse, the Bryan and others too numerous to mention.

It is in this section lying between the Bennett-Stephenson and the Torpedo the Robertson properties are to be found, which have been bonded and are being developed by a company of El Paso business men. Here, too, are the mines of the New Mexico Lead company, which is one of the greatest shipping and paying propositions in the Southwest.

El Paso and Northeastern.

Still further east and last are the mining sections reached by the El Paso & Northeastern road. At White Oaks the Old Abe has reached a depth of 1180 feet and an output of more than $800,000. It is surrounded by lesser lights, North Homestake, Lady Godiva, South Homestake, Little Black, Silver Cliff, Miner's Cabin and many others.

Here in the Compromise mine was made a strike of nuggets, leaf and wire gold astonishing to all who have seen or heard of it, and causing $100,000 to be refused for a property which was not long before taken for a debt of $227.

At Jarilla is one of the most wonderful of mineral upthrusts known to the geology of America. Here the Jarilla Mining company have more than 40 of the choicest claims, besides those in the Sacramento, Sierra Blanca, the Escourras, the Barros and the San Andrass.

The Lucky, copper; the Nannie Baird, gold; the Seven-Come-Eleven, copper; and placer mines rivaling the richest of the Klondike, are in this section. The De Montes turquoise mine, the most notable in the Southwest, is in this section; and from the Iron Mask a whole train of cars could be loaded with the float ore alone, which is hematite 55 per cent pure. The Jarilla Mining company, which has the pick and choice of all this marvelous country, is composed of the men who have constructed the El Paso & Northeastern road, have built the town of Alamogordo and established the marvelous summer resort of Cloudcroft. That they will make a success of the Jarilla Mining company goes without saying, and that all such success will redound to the advantage of El Paso is equally assured.

Around Nogal valuable properties lie in all directions which have not been worked for lack of railroad facilities. This drawback has now been removed by the construction of the White Oaks route and no doubt development will be very rapid. The Vera Cruz is a mountain of low grade ore, mined with pick and shovel; the Helen Ray produced $38,000 in nine feet of working and has produced specimens assaying $63,000 to the ton; the American Mine, the Red Chief, the Hopeful and almost innumerable others, prospects and properties, await the investor. All these, together with the coal fields of White Oaks and Capitan, are the patrimony recently bestowed upon the city by the El Paso & Northeastern.

THE CITY SHOWS IT.

With such surrounding territory and such exclusive means of reaching it, El Paso could not be other than a great mining center. Nor does the city fail to bear evidence of the fact. Its largest enterprise is the smelter, which employs some 1200 men, with a monthly disbursement of $40,000. The capacity of this plant was increased one-third during the past year, and still it was a matter of remark not long since that 250 cars of ore had been side-tracked awaiting their turn to be treated. The corporation has plants located at Argentine, Ia., and Leadville, Colo. It also has a branch establishment in the City of Mexico. The company was incorporated in 1897, with a capital stock of $2,000,000.

The Juarez company was organized in 1897, and a smelting, concentrating and sampling plant erected just across the river in the City of Juarez. The smelting portion, having been purchased by the Guggenheim company, is at present not running. The sampling and concentrating departments are in full force, the capacity of the latter being 100 tons per day. The company is also a ready purchaser of ore.

A few weeks ago, near Fort Bliss and on the line of the El Paso & Northeastern, the Federal Copper company blew in their new smelter. They employ at present some 200 men. But already have begun upon enlargement, which will be continued from time to time to meet the demand of their growing business.

The El Paso Foundry & Machine company is another great industrial institution, owing its existence to El Paso's importance as a mining center. The company was organized in 1890, the plant covers an entire block, more than 80 skilled mechanics are employed and the payroll exceeds $5000 per month. The other day the Mine & Smelter Supply company, having houses at Denver, Salt Lake, El Paso and Mexico City, purchased one-half interest in the Foundry & Machine company, and the plant will at once be enlarged. It is intended to make here much of the mining machinery demanded in this section and in Mexico.
The Pass City Foundry & Machine company completed their plant about two years ago. It is at present leased to the Compania Industrial Mexicana, of Chihuahua, Mex., with Juan A. Creel as general manager. The plant employs 35 men and has a monthly disbursement of $2000. It manufactures ore cars and mining machinery.

The Mine & Smelter Supply company is an important enterprise rapidly assuming mammoth proportions. About two years ago it was started as a branch house to the Compania Industrial Mexicana of Chihuahua; but a year ago it was purchased by the company long engaged in handling mine and smelter supplies, who already had large establishments at Denver, Salt Lake and Mexico City, and whose capital is practically unlimited. Their salesrooms and warehouses in this city are the largest that could be found, the warerooms having been built expressly for them. Besides this company, a number of the large hardware houses deal extensively in supplies which mills, mines and smelters demand.

El Paso’s growing importance as a supply point is again emphasized in the advent of the well-known Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., the largest manufacturers of billiard and pool tables and bar fixtures in the world, who several months since established a branch house here through Mr. J. P. Paulson, their southwestern representative, who is also in charge of the Denver and Salt Lake houses. Recognition such as this of El Paso’s geographical and commercial importance augurs well for the future of the city.

Five assayers find themselves busily occupied at this point. Two of them are officials—Angel Aguilar representing the Mexican government, and T. B. Johnson the American government. Besides there are D. W. Reckhart of the Independent Assay office, Godfrey Hughes of the Custom Assay office, and the Seamon Assay company. All of these are men of large attainments and long experience in their professions, and each is supplied with a laboratory thoroughly equipped and in every point up-to-date.

The El Paso Chamber of Commerce is two years old and devoted to the advancement of the city along every line of possible progress, fully realizes El Paso’s importance as the mining center of the Southwest and the only one in the United States international in location and character. Hence, having moved into its own building, it took immediate action to secure a cabinet of minerals representative of El Paso’s tributary mining country. To this end Major S. M. Davis was appointed representative of the Chamber and sent upon the task of collecting minerals for a permanent exhibit to be maintained in the rooms of the Chamber. This he did by personal visits to the different sections where such specimens were selected and secured as best illustrate the section as a whole and the individual properties from which they have been obtained. The Chamber has also been fortunate in that it has upon exhibition the private cabinet of Prof. Cafarelli, which is well...

MINERS' ASSOCIATION.

During the Midwinter Carnival in January, 1901, the mining men of the Southwest and of Northern Mexico were invited to meet in El Paso. Many did so. All sections were well represented and the Southwestern International Miners' Association was formed.

The territory embraced by the membership of this association extends for 300 to 800 miles in all directions from El Paso, and includes especially Western Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and the Mexican states of Chihuahua and Sonora. In a general way, says the International Industrial Record, the purpose of the organization is to promote the mining, smelting, milling and allied interests of the Southwestern United States and Northern Mexico. Among the special means adopted to this end are the following:

By promoting the acquaintance and intercourse of Americans and Mexicans in the mining field.

By maintaining a bureau of information, including a directory of mining men and companies.

By seeking the enactment of equitable mining laws favorable to the development of the mineral resources.

By listing properties, bringing capitalists and mine owners together, and thus, in a wholly disinterested way, promoting sales and investments.

By promoting good feeling and fair dealing between mining men on the one hand and the smelters, mill men, and railway companies on the other hand.

By encouraging and assisting the establishment of smelters and mills and the building of railways where necessary to the development of profitable working of mineral deposits.

By promoting the enactment of laws to secure the health and safety of men in mills, mines and smelters.

By assembling and maintaining at the headquarters of the association a collection of mineral specimens and products representing the mineral resources of the surrounding country, and providing for the placing of such collections at all the great expositions.

By assisting, in an advisory capacity, toward the establishment and maintenance of a mining stock exchange.

The association has already taken steps towards the collection of a mineral exhibit for the St. Louis Exposition. Under the auspices of this association arrangements have been made for a drilling contest during the Carnival of January, 1902.

Membership every contractor and builder of importance in El Paso. The Exchange was formed for the purpose of protecting the interest of the building trades. Membership in the Exchange, like membership in the Board of Trade of a large city, gives evidence of standing. Irresponsible people are not admitted to membership, and therefore a contractor who is a member is in a position to get extended credit and lower prices from material men, and thus give the public the benefit of closer figures in bidding on work.

The Exchange now has sixty-seven members. The officers are: Frank Powers, president; L. W. Hoffecker, secretary; W. H. Rattenbury, treasurer.

THE MAN WITH THE IRON HORSE.

El Paso the Hub of a Series of Commercial Arteries that Gridiron the Great Southwest.

Commerce alone remains to be considered as a factor in El Paso's prosperity. Had the Rio Grande been a navigable stream El Paso would have been a great city long before St. Louis; for as Mrs. Partington thoughtfully remarked, "The big rivers always run by the big towns." But the river, grand only in name and length, was not navigable, and El Paso had to wait for the coming of the iron horse. It came and with it came prosperity.

And what place in all the country is comparable to El Paso as a railroad center? Eight railroads pour their wealth into her lap and give her access to every point of the compass. San Diego, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Denver, Chicago, Kansas City, St. Louis, Memphis, New Orleans, Galveston and the City of Mexico are the terminating points of the spokes which unite in El Paso their common hub. None of these roads pass through the city, but she is the common terminal for them all. Five of these roads belong to four of the greatest railway systems of the world—the Southern Pacific System, the Santa Fe System, the Gould system and the Mexican Central, or chief system of the southern republic. Nor are the three remaining roads less important in their present position of local feeders and in their certain prospects of speedy expansion.

Last year this Directory said: "Mr. C. B. Eddy, with the sagacity which saw the importance and the energy which secured the accomplishment of the El Paso & Northeastern, already has his surveying corps in the field; and no one who knows the gentleman has any doubt that the next year will see El Paso's most important local feeder converted into a great through line, adding the advantages of the latter without losing any of the importance of former." Indeed, the speedy connection of this road with the Rock Island at some point in Eastern New Mexico, to which the Rock Island has already made surveys and to which it will build, is a foregone conclusion. By the time this edition of the Directory shall be in the hands of its readers, the connection will have been made at Santa Rosa, N. M., and the Rock Island trains will be running into El Paso.

The prediction that the Pecos Valley road would reach here from Roswell, has not as yet been fulfilled, owing to the sale of that road to the Santa Fe; but its coming has probably been delayed rather than abandoned. The connection of the Rock Island with the El Paso & Northeastern may compel the Santa Fe to build from Roswell here in self-defence. Or the Choctaw, Oklahoma & Gulf road, which evidently has El Paso in view, may supply this much desired link.

That the Sierra Madre route shall remain as it is, does not seem reasonable. It is more than probable that when the Rock Island or the Choctaw, Oklahoma & Gulf reaches El Paso, it will be found that they are looking for an extension to the Pacific coast of Mexico.

But to him that hath shall be given; and El Paso's present importance as a railway center, together with the natural advantages before enumerated, will draw to her of necessity all railway development contemplated in the Southwest. This is shown by the building in El Paso of the railway enterprises now had in hand by the Phelps-Dodge company of Arizona.

In this connection it is appropriate to speak more in detail of the railroads which El Paso has, and which have made her growth so astonishingly rapid and permanent.

THE SOUTHERN PACIFIC.

This great road, embracing a trackage of 6762 miles, was the first to reach El Paso, entering the city in May, 1881. It is the fifth in the number of passengers carried among the railroads of the nation, while its steamship line from New York to New Orleans carries 85 per cent of the business between the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. With its allied steamship lines, it connects all American possessions, from Puerto Rico to the Philippines. Its terminal lines are Portland, Oregon; Ogden, Utah; and New Orleans, Louisiana. In the county of El Paso it has 135 miles of track, which with proportion of equipment and buildings, are listed for assessment at $1,169,651. It has four daily passenger trains, in and out, while its limited trains are six per week. It brings to and takes from the city daily about two hundred persons or an average of 600 a month. It takes about twelve freight trains a day to handle its commerce, while its employee number nearly 700 and its monthly pay roll is in excess of $55,000. It makes tributary to El Paso an immense scope of country both to the northwest and the southeast, and no other system has El Paso been more indebted for her rapid growth and present prosperity.

TWENTY YEARS OF EL PASO.
THE SANTA FE.

The Santa Fe was the second system to lay its line into El Paso, reaching here in June, 1881, but a few days after the Southern Pacific. This system is another of the trans-continental routes by means of which El Paso is directly connected with every important center in the whole country. It has a mileage of 7500 miles, while its terminal points are San Francisco, Los Angeles, San Diego, El Paso, Denver, Pueblo, Kansas City, Chicago and Galveston.

It thus connects the great lakes with the gulf and the Pacific, as well as taps the commerce of the Mississippi valley. Its passenger traffic into and out of the city will aggregate between 2000 and 2500 per month. Its freights require the running of six trains per day on an average, as much of the commerce of the United States and Mexico finds its way over its lines. Its employees at this point number about seventy-five and its pay roll here exceeds $10,000 per month. It has within El Paso county 20.16 miles of track, which with proportion of rolling stock, depots and other buildings are valued for taxation at $301,077. As a local feeder the Santa Fe is of the greatest importance to El Paso, since it makes directly tributary to this city the finest agricultural and mineral sections of New Mexico.

TEXAS AND PACIFIC.

This was the third road to reach El Paso, and to hear its employees talk it is the most dearly beloved of all. Its own exclusive mileage, lying in Texas and Louisiana, aggregates 1524 miles; but the Texarkana it merges into the great Gould system, of which it is an integral and valuable part. By means of this road not only is El Paso put into easy touch with the grand country of north Texas, but it is given direct access to the whole Mississippi valley, the road very properly claiming four gateways—Texarkana, Shreveport, New Orleans and El Paso.

The T. & P. runs two daily passengers and handles here not less than 1500 persons per month. Its employees at this point seldom fall below 200 in number, while its monthly pay roll will average $14,000. It requires on an average some six trains a day to handle its freight business.

This road has done much to advertise El Paso, not alone by the literature it so abundantly scatters to the four corners of the earth, but by the additional fact that on all its freight cars one reads in large and impressive letters, "The El Paso route."

MEXICAN CENTRAL.

This is the leading system of Mexico, having about 2000 miles, 1224 between this city and the City of Mexico. Construction was begun from El Paso soon after the arrival of the roads already mentioned, though it was not till 1884 that the line was completed. This line reaches the chief cities of Mexico and puts them into connection with the United States at this point. Among them may be mentioned Juarez.

BUCK'S DIRECTORY OF EL PASO.

Cahuahua, Mexico City, Leon, Lagos, Silao, Aguas Calientes, Torreon, Parral, Zacatecas, Guadalajara, Tampico, Ameca and Lerdo. Thus an immense portion of the most beautiful, productive, grazing and mineralized sections of Mexico are put in easy reach of El Paso and the largest part of the commerce to and from Mexico passes through El Paso. Its passenger service into and out of this city will not fall short of a monthly average of 5000 persons, while from eight to ten daily freights are needed to carry its constantly growing commerce. Stock, minerals and fruits are the chief articles brought to the United States, the road in one season frequently handling as many as 3000 cars of oranges alone. The shipments south consist chiefly of machinery, coal, lumber and general merchandise. Some 150 employes are on the pay roll here, causing a monthly expenditure of $5000. The Mexican Central enters the city over the Santa Fe tracks, and so has no assessable property in the county.

THE SIERRA MADRE.

This line, the full name of which is the Rio Grande, Sierra Madre & Pacific, was built from El Paso southwestward to Casas Grandes, Mexico, 175 miles, during the years 1896-97. It is to be ultimately extended to the Pacific ocean, tapping country unsurpassed in the Southern republic in mineral, timber, grazing and agricultural resources. When thus completed it will close the last gap in a new and great transcontinental line, materially shortening the distance between the Atlantic states and the Orient. But even without this completion the Sierra Madre is one of El Paso's most valuable feeders.

This road runs a daily train, except Sunday, bringing in about 1000 passengers per month and taking out about 1200. The freight traffic will average three trains each way daily, and is constantly increasing. This is well illustrated by the fact that prior to the completion of the road to Casas Grandes, June 24, 1897, the mineral output of the section did not reach 200 tons per month; it now runs from 7000 to 9000 tons monthly, while other freights have increased proportionately.

The employes of the Sierra Madre road, at their Rio Grande terminal, number 110, and they disburse monthly $25,000. Their trackage consists of 157 miles of main line and four miles of the San Pedro branch, every foot of the 161 miles being tributary to El Paso's business interests.

EL PASO AND NORTHEASTERN.

The trackage of this road, usually denominated the White Oaks route, consists of 272 miles of main track, which reaches to Santa Rosa in Central New Mexico. The Cloudcroft line is 28 miles long and the Jarilla branch is three. It has within the county of El Paso 19.3 miles of main track, assessed with other properties at $126,251. It is at present engaged in expending $100,000 additional in the city in the erection

The road is at present employing considerably over 2000 men and its pay roll is about $100,000 per month.

All of this is directly tributary to El Paso, and both number of men and amount of pay roll for a long while will continue to increase from month to month. This road has opened an entirely new coal district; of wide extent and immense value, the tonnage from which must soon become enormous. Four months after reaching the coal fields the company shipped about 30 cars a day, but the lack of a sufficiently large number of miners prevented as rapid development as had been anticipated.

Next to the supply of fuel, the greatest favor this road has conferred on El Paso and her tributary territory has been the establishment of Cloudcroft, an ideal summer resort. Here at the height of nearly 10,000 feet, and reached by the most picturesque road in America, a summer resort has been established, literally at the very door of El Paso. Nor are El Pasoans slow to see the advantage of a place where the family of a business man can spend the summer, and he can go out to a beautiful little city of summer homes.

This line will within a few weeks begin the construction of a branch line from near Liberty, N. M., to the immense coal fields recently purchased at Dawson, Colfax county, N. M., while the Santa Fe Central, a newly chartered company, supposed to be backed by the Denver & Rio Grande, is preparing to build from Santa Fe to Camelon, on the El Paso & Northeastern, a distance of 116 miles, thus giving El Paso another route to Denver and a through line to the Great Northwest.

El Paso's Latest.

Phelps, Dodge & Co., have their offices at 99 John street, New York City, where they are known as operators in copper properties, and as one of the oldest and most solid firms of the city. They have large mining interests and extensive mining property in Arizona, Mexico and New Mexico.

Some time ago they acquired the Arizona & Southwestern railroad, extending from Benson to Bisbee and down to Naco, on the Mexican border. Last year they began building a line from Don Luiz to Nacozari, to tap certain mines they have in that section. The building was carried on in Mexico under the name of the Nacozari railroad company. In Arizona the road was known as the Southwestern of Arizona; in New Mexico, as the Southwestern of New Mexico; in Texas, as the El Paso Terminal company. Subsequently all parts of the road except that in Mexico received the name El Paso & Southwestern.

From El Paso the line runs due west to Carrizillo Springs, from which point a thirty-one miles branch extends to Deming. From Carrizillo the line is continued west to Bisbee. A branch of the road will... run from Hatchita to Lordsburg, to connect with the Arizona & New Mexico road from Clifton. Benson is at present the western terminus of the system, which also includes a branch line from Fairbank to Tombstone, making a trackage of 600 miles already contracted for. And it would be difficult to find 600 other miles in any direction opening a mineral country of greater richness.

But no one can believe for a moment that Benson will remain the western terminal of the line. From Benson to Yuma and from Yuma to San Diego is as inevitable as the setting of the sun. This will give El Paso and the Rock Island access to the second finest harbor on the California coast. And the opportunity will assuredly not be neglected.

But at Clifton the new road will be met by a line projected from Durango, Colo., which will give El Paso a through and direct line to Western Colorado and Utah points, and on to the great northwest at Seattle and Tacoma. The entire way has either been built or is now building, except the short connecting link from Durango to Clifton. This has been surveyed and been found of easy grades and cheap construction, and the promoters of it assert their ability to build.

But the next thing in the way of railway construction, at least within the city, after the building of the El Paso & Southeastern depot, tracks and general office building, will be a grand union depot, to which all the roads have consented and for which they are now preparing.

EL PASO'S CLIMATE.

Its Peculiarities Scientifically Discussed—A Region Unequaled for Health and Pleasure.

Comfort and health are but seldom combined with the largest opportunities for financial success, nature in most instances appearing parsimonious in her gifts. But with El Paso such is not the case. For comfort and healthfulness this city has few equals and certainly no superior. Her climate during nine months of the year is absolutely ideal, while during the remaining three—June, July and August—though the days are warm, especially if exercising in the direct sunshine, the shade is always agreeable and the nights are delightful.

As the climate of El Paso is something not generally understood, the writer of this article begs to produce, from other publications matter previously prepared and published by him on this subject.

To understand fully the question of this city's climate it must be borne in mind that altitude places El Paso low down among the southern gulf states, giving her a position among places where roses bloom abundantly in the gardens during December, and spring has already begun before the close of February. But this climate of latitude is modified and greatly changed by the physical conformation of the country, the altitude and aridity of land and air.

El Paso is elevated 3740 feet above sea level, is about in the center of an arid section fully 1000 miles in diameter, and lies at the foot of the great slanting plateau of New Mexico. See how these act. For about every 400 feet of altitude the difference in climate varies about as in one degree in latitude. Hence the summer climate of El Paso is fully that of nine degrees further north than it would be were the city situated on the level of the sea.

But New Mexico is the great cooler of El Paso climate, the city being situated in the very mouth of the pass or draw through which flows the chief waters of New Mexico, as well as the descending cool streams of air.

In New Mexico during winter snow fields vast and deep form on the higher mountains and in the deep, dark canyons through which the sunshine seldom peeps. With the approach of summer these snows begin to melt. This is a cooling process, because it is the conversion of a solid into a liquid. Thus every snow-capped mountain peak, and every snow-covered mountain range, and snow-packed mountain gorge becomes a vast refrigerator for the reduction of heat in New Mexico’s summer climate; and as New Mexico slants towards El Paso at the rate of 3500 feet in 350 miles, the same effect is had upon El Paso.

From these fields of melting snow pour down innumerable streams of melting water, ramifying in every direction, but ultimately uniting to form the principal rivers. These streams of cooling water flow through the valleys, around the foothills and beside the mesas, absorbing heat from the air and reducing New Mexico’s summer temperature and also that of El Paso.

But from the mountain sides and mountain canyons, in addition to the streams of cold water, which can be seen, there flow down innumerable streams of cold air, which cannot be seen—air made cold by the conversion of the solid snow to the liquid water—and these invisible streams of cold air, being heavier than the air which has not been cooled, roll down through the valleys and over the tableland, bathing all in their delightful coolness.

But as the streams of water rush rapidly down the natural descent of the country, the arid air drinks huge draughts to slake its thirst. Or, in other words, evaporation from the water is very great.
But man steps in, and by the creation of artificial streams, by running his irrigation ditches here and there and everywhere, from the main canal carrying the water supply of many fields to the little run-rows spreading it out amongst the growing crops, he increases the evaporation many fold and spreads it over largely extended areas.
And what is evaporation? The changing of a liquid to a vapor, a cool-

The ing process employed in making artificial ice and which, if sufficiently vigorous, can be employed to freeze water in a red-hot crucible. This evaporation, then, adds another factor in the reduction of New Mexico's summer temperature, and the air it supplies to El Paso.

Afterwards comes the summer rains, and while the act of raining, the condensation of vapor into liquid, is a warming process, yet so small is the per cent. of humidity in the atmosphere of this section, that here to 9 in the Gulf states, a very severe chilling is required to wring any precipitation from the air. Thus the temperature is always low when it rains, and no sooner has the precipitation ceased than the air begins to draw the water back again by rapid evaporation. And thus the cooling process continues; so that the long, languid, exhausting heat of the south, and the shorter but sharper and more fervent and destructive heat of the north are unknown in El Paso's delicious summer climate.

Aridity, also, plays a large and active part in the determination of El Paso's climate. It is well known that the air receives little or no heat from the passage through it of the sun's rays. Were it not for the reflection of heat from the earth's surface, the air would be warmer above the earth than upon its surface, but in reality the cold increases with rapid intensity as they ascend.

A familiar illustration of the sun's rays passing through the air, without warming the air itself, may be seen in window glass, through which the rays of the sun may comfortably heat a room, while the temperature of the glass will not be sensibly affected.

However, the sun's rays communicate heat to the earth's surface on which they strike, and to the vapor of water in the air through which they pass. Much moisture in the air, therefore, accumulates great heat and shuts humanity in between the earth's hot surface at their feet and the warm stratum of moisture above their heads. But where the air is comparatively devoid of vapor, the sun's rays striking the earth are partially reflected and partially absorbed, the amount depending on the character of the surface. The reflected part passes back through the lower stratum of the atmosphere into the overlying strata, and is diffused therein. The heat absorbed by the surface of the earth is in part communicated by convection to the air lying upon it, thus warming the air itself; while the other part is radiated, and in the absence of absorbing moisture is likewise diffused in the upper regions of the atmosphere. Thus an arid air reduces heat.

Several other important results follow from the high condition of aridity presented in El Paso's atmosphere. One is that clouds are absent to such an extent that a totally cloudy day is almost unknown. Consequently the sun has full and unlimited opportunity to accomplish his great work upon animal and vegetable life. Then, too, but little of the sun's heat having been absorbed by moisture, one is always comfortable in the direct sunlight any day in the winter. On the other hand, from the same absence of moisture and the consequent lack of diffused heat in the air on any summer’s day, however warm it may be in the sunshine, one will always find pleasant coolness in the shade.

Another result of aridity is the rapid absorption of moisture by the air. Just as a dry sponge will suck up water more quickly and in larger quantity than if already partially wet, so dry air will more quickly and thoroughly drink up moisture than can air partially saturated. This is why, unless violently exercising, perspiration is seldom troublesome. It is not that perspiration fails to form upon the brow, but rather that it is absorbed by the air before it can trickle down the face.

All know that when a solid mass is converted into a liquid heat is absorbed or rendered latent. Familiarity with this fact has come to every boy made to turn the family ice cream freezer. Salt melts ice and the process of melting withdraws the heat of the cream and causes it to freeze. In like manner, the changing of a liquid to a gas or vapor causes active heat to become latent. The sprinkling of a street cools the air, because the water in evaporating or changing into vapor absorbs heat from the air. As water sprinkled on the store-room floor evaporates, it cools the air in the store, by rendering latent some of its heat. The Hindoo, to ameliorate his intensely hot climate, hangs cloths saturated with water across his rooms. As the water evaporated from the cloths, the heat of the room is moderated. Fanning gives relief from heat by removing from contact with the body air which has been nearly saturated with moisture and putting in its place air less saturated, which immediately absorbs a part of the perspiration, thereby cooling the flesh. Hence, as long as fanning is continued a measure of relief is experienced. And hence, the laborious summer fanning day and night, everywhere practiced in low altitudes and to which only uncomfortable and fatigued sleep gives temporary cessation.

But nature for El Paso performs in a large scale these functions which man elsewhere so feebly imitates for his comfort.

Another factor in the production of El Paso’s matchless climate is the winds, which are never weary. How often can one in the low altitudes look out over the fields lying apparently paralyzed in the overpowering heat of the day? Not a leaf moves upon a tree, nor a bird lifts its note from leafy grove; not a blade of grass is stirred but as some grasshopper lazily shifts to its shady side, the kine stand knee deep in shadowed pools neglecting to switch the flies which the heat has made cease tormenting, the barn-yard fowls forgetful of scratching instinct burrow in the shade of fence or house and listlessly lie with expanded wing and gaping mouth; while the human being, divested of all clothing that propriety will permit, with arm weary of fanning and brow dripping with sweat, gasps.
Oh, but for one breath of air!" and gasps in vain. El Paso knows nothing of this. The wonderful diversity of formation in her surrounding surface, the rapid fall of her adjacent table lands, the isolation of her neighboring valleys, the height of her overlooking mountains—these and other things produce a multitude of commingling air currents, which are never at rest, which cause more or less of a breeze every day in the year, and which frequently in spring and fall stir up high winds, decidedly dust provoking in their capacity.

It is not given to the earth to claim perfection, but El Paso comes as near perfection in climate as the world can produce. The very act of living here is in itself an indescribable luxury. The drinking of its pure, dry, electrified air is like taking an elixir. The walking on its elevated soil is like treading a new world. To gaze into the vast serenity of its dazzling and peaceful blue sky, unfeathered by cloud and unclouded by storm, it is a pleasure never to be forgotten and never growing stale by repetition. To look out over landscapes, with their sharply contrasted high lights and deep shadows, as of a scene illuminated by electricity, makes other views grow tame upon the eye. In summer, to arise every morning invigorated from a refreshing sleep, and to retire again in the evening without the insidious and subject weariness produced by having spent the day in sweltering sweat-box; in winter, to know nothing of the piercing, prying, not to be excluded cold gnawing its way to your very marrow and curdling, as it were, the actual blood in your veins—to escape these, and have a winter with few days when an overcoat is needed by any one attending to business, and with almost every day permitting invalids to enjoy the sunshine and fresh air by walking, driving or sitting in the parks; and on the other hand, to find in summer that, as soon as the sun goes down, from the mountain heights and the lofty valleys there come sweeping upon the lower lands, cool and invigorating breezes, laden with resinous aroma and surcharged with electricity, carrying health to diseased lungs and throats; strengthening the entire frame, building up the physical man, invigorating depleted brain tissue, requiring destroyed appetite, quieting excitable nerves—in a word, turning back the hands of life on the dial of age—to experience these things is to fall in love with the city and to be unwilling ever again to live elsewhere.

PREFERRABLE CLIMATIC ATTRIBUTES.

Consumption is the scourge of humanity, one death in every six being to its charge. When it is remembered what a mighty army of diseases death marshals against the race, and yet that a sixth of the slain is from this one disease, the fearfulness of its curse becomes appalling. It shows that for other diseases science has found remedies, but that against consumption all knowledge and effort are helpless. Hereditary and contagious, and often originating apparently without either cause; some times skipping a generation or eartain members of a family, but ever returning for its prey to their descendants; as the race increases and as the appliances of civilization are augmented, cutting wider swathes in the fields of human life, and yet laughing to scorn all medical skill and proving obdurate alike to the discovery of the scientist and the nostrum of the charlatan—such is consumption, the invincible lieutenant of death.

The asthmatic or the consumptive is not the only invalid who may turn his eyes with hope to this Mecca of the afflicted. To the overwrought, mentally or physically; to the rundown, from dissipation or disease; to the prostrated, whether from devotion to business or pleasure; to those who have lost appetite, lost the pleasures of sleep, lost interest in life, whatever the cause or reason—to all these El Paso extends her hands of healing. Her bright skies and radiant sunshine; her pure, dry, rarefied air, surcharged with electricity and saturated with ozone, tonic and invigorant; her incomparable nights, cool, refreshing, delightful, making sleep the greatest of all luxuries, and absolutely incompatible with insomnia—these are the things that come of merely being in the climate, and bring their blessing of quieted nerves, restored strength, increased flesh regained appetite, and recovered sleep, just simply whether we will or not. If one cannot sleep here then there remains but one refuge for him—the grave, where the dreamless sleep can be broken by no sounds of earth.

But while every class of invalid, except those suffering from extreme cases of heart trouble, may be beneficiaries of the matchless climate of El Paso, it is to the consumptive that this "land of sunshine" is emphatically the land of hope and health. The abundant electricity produces an unusual quantity of ozone from the oxygen of the atmosphere, and the pure dry air and the ozone form an ideal natural medicament for all diseased air passages and mucous membranes; and they in connection with the altitude, requiring greater lung activity, and the ceaseless sunshine, vitalizing every function of the human frame, will invariably cure consumption if it be taken in time, and if the health seeker will avail himself of nature’s remedies by a life of outdoor exercise.

For some time the gathering of statistics has shown that consumption is much more prevalent in certain sections of the country than in others. For instance, the proportion per 1000 has been stated: Maine 50, remainder of the New England states 25, Minnesota 14, southern states 6, Rio Grande valley 3, the last being less than anywhere else in the United States. But the further study of statistics brought to light the fact that, taking the world over, the greater or less prevalence of consumption accompanied certain marked differences in climate; and soon the climates of greatest and least prevalence became accurately defined. From this it was but a single step to the conclusion that those climates in which consumption least prevailed or, in other words, which most largely prevented the disease, would be the climates most conducive to recovery from it. This conclusion was the more readily reached because medical science, despairing of materia medica, had been for some time empirically experimenting in the matter of climatic cure.

Experience has demonstrated beyond denial that dampness of atmosphere furnishes a stimulus to the development of consumption-producing bacilli, equaled by no other agency and approached in efficiency only by confinement within doors, cut off from exercise and direct sunshine, and accompanied by the customary inhalation of the superheated and vitiated atmosphere of a sickroom. No wonder is it that in localities where dampness prevails for six months of the year, and the other to protect the invalid from the rigorous cold his weakened vitality is unable to resist, there consumption runs riot and to be affected is to die. Yet such conditions prevail over large portions of the habitable globe.

Experience has farther demonstrated that the sections of least prevalence of consumption are all characterized by a dry, germless, healing atmosphere, noted for purity, aridity, and abundance of ozone and electricity, with the added excellence of practically perpetual sunshine, and seasons destitute of excessive heat or rigorous cold. Thus is met the entire demand for dryness, evenness of temperature, elevation, sunshine, and tonic atmospheric effects, the very prime attributes in the conflict with consumption, nowhere else found combined in such fulness and perfection as in the climate of El Paso and of the country tributary to this city.

One of the most important medical gatherings of recent times was held at Moscow, Russia. The occasion was the meeting of the International Medical Congress. It brought together more than 7000 medical men, among whom were the recognized leaders of every civilized country. One meeting was devoted to the discussion of the present methods of treating tuberculosis. The quotations given below are from papers read by some of these great men.

By Dr. Von Ziemsen of Vienna: "As far back as we can see in the history of medicine fresh air has been one of the requirements in the treatment of tuberculosis, but it is only of late that the advantage of high altitudes has been clearly demonstrated. That tubercular patients can get a quantity of fresh air in these regions is evident to any one who has visited these places; but the fresh air that surrounds them is not all; the altitude brings about an excitation of the book-making organs that increases the corpuscular elements in the blood. Even in health this reaction takes place, but not so markedly as in diseased states."

By Dr. Senator of Berlin: "I am convinced that the only treatment of value is the climatic and I believe high altitudes are of value. 1 regard altitude as a factor second only in importance to fresh air. Sunlight is also of great value, and the sun’s rays themselves exert a particular influence.”

By Dr. Von Leyden of Berlin, Germany, greatest general practitioner: “So far the only treatment that has given any success is the climatic. My best results have been obtained in mountains. The more comfortable a patient be made there the better, as a rule, will be the results.”

By Dr. Kornig, Court Physician of St. Petersburg: “I have found an increase in the red blood-cells in patients who have gone to high altitudes, and I am inclined to attribute to this increase a large part of the benefit derived from mountain sanatoria.”

By Dr. Jarvein, Professor in the Military Academy of St. Petersburg: “After listening to the greatest authorities in Europe on the treatment of phthisis in mountain sanatoria, I believe there can be but little doubt in the minds of those present that this is at present the only mode of treatment.”

By Dr. Vivant of Monte Carlo, Riviera, France: “The climate must be justly regarded as of value in the treatment of this disease (tuberculosis), and offers a certain number of features in common, viz: Pure air, that is, oxygen, in an unlimited quantity; dryness, that is, absence of fogs, of air charged with moisture, to interrupt light, heat and chemical action of the sun’s rays.”

Dr. Ghas. Denison, president of the American Climatological Association, in laying down the comparative importance of different climatic attributes in the arrest of chronic pulmonary diseases, gives them in the following order: Dryness as opposed to moisture; coolness or cold preferable to warmth or heat, rarefaction as opposed to sea-level pressure; sunshine as opposed to cloudiness; variability of temperature as opposed to equability.

In the matter of dryness, Dr. Yandell, late health physician of El Paso, compiled from signal service reports the mean relative humidity of this city, together with that of a number of other stations, for the seven months from September to May, during a long series of years, which averaged as follows: El Paso 48, Santa Fe, 48, Prescott, 52, Denver 51, New York 70, Boston 70, Chicago 72, Detroit 73, New Orleans 71, San Antonio 70, San Diego 72, Jacksonville, Fla., 72. Through the kindness of Prof. Lane of the local weather bureau the following table has been prepared showing the average rainfall per month at this place for a period of the last 18 years. The precipitation is given in inches and hundredths:

From this table it will be seen that the normal precipitation amounts to but 9.39 inches during the whole year. Of this slight amount, 4.39 inches or more than half falls during July, August and September, leaving only 4.34 inches or .48—less than a half inch—as the average precipitation for the remaining nine months of the year. Thus fully does El Paso answer the most imperative demand as an ideal climate for consumptives.

The altitude of El Paso is given as 3764 feet, which seems to be about the proper height to secure the best results to the largest number of invalids, as less than that altitude gives too much pressure and hastens the destruction of lung tissue, while a higher altitude subjects the patient to the danger of other various complications.

The absence of extremes in either heat or cold is well shown by the following table taken from the official records of the weather bureau at this point, and extending over a period of 18 years. From these records it appears that the average normal temperature of the several months is in degrees as follows:

Thus it will be seen that the coldest month, January, differed from the hottest month, July, during a period extending over 18 years, only by an average of 37.4 degrees. The signal service reports also show that the coldest period of the 24 hours, the country over, is given by the 7 a.m. readings of the thermometers, and that the average of those readings in the coldest month, January, is for El Paso, 36 degrees; for Prescott, 24 degrees; for Denver, 15 degrees; for Santa Fe, 21 degrees; for New York, 27 degrees; for Boston, 23 degrees; and for Chicago, 21 degrees. In other words, while all the other places mentioned showed for the coldest part of the day during the month of January, extending over a wide series of years, an average temperature ranging from 12 to 17 degrees below the freezing point, El Paso's average for the same day and ranging through the same series of years, was as high as four.
EL PASO'S FINANCIAL STRENGTH.

Probably no one feature in El Paso's commercial life more fully demonstrates the wonderful growth of the city than does the history and condition of its banks.

On December 1, 1898, or three years ago, the First National bank of this city showed total resources of $943,780.87. Its loans and discounts amounted to $427,531.56. Its deposits were $698,061.04; its capital stock, $100,000; its surplus and undivided profits, $55,719.83; and its circulation $90,000.

At the same time the State National bank had resources amounting to $752,872.63. Its loans and discounts were $345,241.42. Its deposits reached $516,476.66; its capital stock, $55,000; its surplus and undivided profits, $39,295.97; and its circulation $12,100.

On the first day of November, 1901, the First National's statement showed total resources amounting to $1,523,317.03; loans and discounts, $680,329.95; capital stock, $200,000; surplus and undivided profits, $26,987.08; and circulation, $50,000.

On December 10, 1901, the State National's statement showed its total resources as $1,187,907.69; loans and discounts, $505,572.53; deposits, $1,078,279.51; capital stock, $55,000; surplus and undivided profits, $43,328.18; circulation, $11,300.

The two banks combined, three years ago, showed resources to be $1,696,553.50: loans and discounts, $772,776.05; deposits, $1,344,537.70; capital stock, $155,000; surplus and undivided profits, $95,015.80; circulation, $102,100.

These same banks now show: Resources, $2,711,224.72—gain of $1,014,571.22; loans and discounts, $1,186,105.83—gain of $413,329.78; deposits, $2,324,609.46—gain of $980,071.76; capital stock, $255,000—gain of $100,000; surplus and undivided profits, $70,315.26; circulation, $61,300.

If this is not a growth to satisfy the most exacting, then nothing could meet their demands.

And yet this is only a part of the story. January 2, 1900, or two years ago, the Lowdon National bank was opened for business. Its report shows on November 3, 1901, that its resources amounted to $563,363.45; loans and discounts, $403,989.32; deposits, $415,562.54; capital stock, $100,000; surplus and undivided profits, $22,800.91; circulation, $25,000.

Besides these National banks, the International Exchange bank began business in the city in November, 1900, or a little over a year ago, doing a general banking business, and with correspondents in all the chief cities of the United States, Mexico and Europe. But being a private bank, no official figures can be had upon its business. When seen on this point, the management smiled and said they were well satisfied with their share of the general business. They are arranging for a large banking and trust company business, which will add immensely to the financial resources of El Paso, and it is probable that they will take up the national bank feature in the near future.

But considering the International Exchange bank as merely an offset for the Newman private bank, in existence three years ago, but subsequently changed to the Lowdon National, there remains the following marvelous gain in the banking business of El Paso during the last three years. Resources have increased $1,677,934.67, or a fraction over 93 per cent; loans and discounts have increased $817,310.10, or a fraction more than 105 per cent; deposits have increased $1,395,634.30, or a very small fraction less than 104 per cent; capital stock has increased $200,000, or more than 129 per cent. These figures speak for themselves, and El Paso may well challenge comparison with any place in the state, or out of it.

UNCLE SAM'S MAIL.

The postal growth of a place is no less indicative of a town's advance than is its increase of banking interests. Here, too, El Paso has just cause for pride. The first report made by the present postmaster, Mr. Robert Campbell, was for the quarter ended June 30, 1898, and showed the gross receipts of the office during that quarter to have been $5,524.38, exclusive of the money order business. The report of Mr. Campbell for the quarter ended December 31, 1901, shows the gross receipts increased to $9,962.05. This is a gain of $4,437.67, or a little more than 80 per cent.

The office force consists of the postmaster and fourteen employees, exclusive of those who have charge of the building, the latter being in the customs service.

PROOF OF CLIMATIC ADVANTAGE.

Among the strongest endorsements of the conclusions as to the unequalled healthfulness of El Paso's climate, the following facts may be mentioned:

The great Southern Pacific railroad system, extending from New Orleans to Puget Sound, has selected this city for one of its principal hospitals, and already suitable grounds have been purchased for an enterprise involving an outlay of $125,000. The salubrity of El Paso's climate was the chief factor in the problem of selection.

At Fort Stanton, in Lincoln county, New Mexico, but 109 miles from El Paso, and characterized by the same peculiarities which combine to produce the climate of this city, the United States government has established a hospital and sanitarium for consumptives in its marine service, and at Fort Bayard, in Arizona, a similar institution for consumptives from the army. The latter is somewhat further removed from El Paso than is the former; but the three places are virtually one in those elements which enter into the composition of the most desirable climatic conditions for the treatment of pulmonary affections. The wisdom of the government's selections has been absolutely confirmed by the success marking the career of these institutions, which, though comparatively brief, has been eminently satisfactory.

Could there be produced here the testimony of the hundreds and thousands of persons who have visited El Paso, and by merely residing here for greater or less lengths of time, have been permanently relieved from dreaded lung complications, no doubting Thomases could survive in any part of the country.
degrees above freezing point; and yet this is for the coldest month El Paso knows. Once again the signal service reports show that while for a period of eight years, 1881-8 inclusive, Prescott had 19 days during which the thermometer never rose above 32 degrees, the freezing point, and Denver had 17, Santa Fe 99, New York 186, Boston 261 and Chicago 377. El Paso for the same period had only 5 days during which the temperature remained below the freezing point for the entire 24 hours.

In the matter of sunshine El Paso is equally favored. Again referring to signal service reports, we find that, for the seven months, October and April inclusive, the following are the number of cloudy days per month: Boston 11.1, Chicago, 10.8, San Antonio 10.4, New York 9.8, Denver, 4.5, Santa Fe 3.7, El Paso 2.4. Thus it will appear that of the 212 days included in these seven months, 17.1 days were cloudy, an average of a small fraction over eight per cent. When it is remembered that in meteorological reports that is denominated a cloudy day during which two-thirds of the sky is overcast, or the entire sky is overcast for two-thirds of the day, it will at once be seen in reality there is scarcely a day during the seven months when the sun does not shine through a part of it, while the days of unbroken sunshine are nearly 92 per cent of the whole.

Postoffices in Texas.

(From the United States Postal Guide, compiled and published by the Metropolitan Job Print, New York City.)

The postoffices of Texas are divided into four classes, the first three being called presidential postoffices, for the reason that when the salary of a postmaster reaches the sum of one thousand dollars the appointment by law vests in the president. In the fourth class are found nearly all the offices; the salary being less than one thousand dollars, the postmaster is appointed by the postmaster general. The first class contains all offices where the salary is at least three thousand dollars; the second-class runs from two thousand to three thousand dollars, and the third class from one thousand to two thousand dollars. Total population of the United States, as per U. S. census of 1900, was 76,295,220; of Texas, 3,048,828.

There are 20 cities in the state which have the free delivery service—Austin, Corsicana, Dallas, Denton, El Paso, Fort Worth, Galveston, Galveston, Greenville, Hillsboro, Houston, Laredo, Marshall, Palestine, Paris, San Antonio, Sherman, Temple, Tyler and Waco.

HOMES IN A NEW COUNTRY

The connection of the great Rock Island system with the El Paso & Northeastern railway gives El Paso a new feeder that will not only immeasurably add to its commercial importance, but opens a new country that is one of the richest in point of natural resources in the entire Southwest.

Splendid Possibilities

The rapid development of this country is certain. The Rock Island gives access to the great markets of Kansas City and Chicago, and the consequent impulse to horticulture, agriculture and stock-raising in the section traversed by the two railroads will make the Sacramento Valley and the country surrounding Santa Rosa, and northeast of it, a desirable location for the homeseeker.

Business Opportunities

With the settlement and development of the country safe business opportunities along commercial lines offer themselves in the promising towns of Alamogordo, Tularosa, Capitan and Santa Rosa. The undersigned has for sale lots and acreage tracts in either of these places. Inquiries regarding the country and its prospects promptly answered.

Breathing Spot of the Southwest

The man who can afford it owes it to his family and to himself to secure a change of scene and climate during the sultry summer months. Buy a lot in Cloudcroft and have a summer home amidst the pines and mosses of the highest Sacramentos.

The Advertising Situation

IN EL PASO IS SIMPLY THIS

The Herald circulates an average of 3000 copies daily. One half of this number goes into 1500 homes where no other El Paso paper is taken. The other half goes where one or the other, or perhaps both, are read.

It follows therefore that an advertiser in the Herald covers the whole field. If, in addition, he uses the other dailies he simply reaches 1500 subscribers already reached. The other 1500 he cannot touch at all.

When you buy

Five pounds of Sugar you have a perfect right to assure yourself that you are getting 5 lbs. and not four, or three, only. The publishers of the El Paso Herald believe that the same rule applies to newspaper circulation.

That's the reason the Herald furnishes attested detailed circulation statements and opens its circulation books and press rooms to any interested advertiser or his representative. Advertising contracts in the Herald are based on the guarantee that the circulation of the Herald exceeds that of both other El Paso dailies combined.
