HISTORICAL SKETCH

This ongoing collection of images offers visual documentation of an important period in Mexican history. It is an artificial collection, with photographs drawn from various sources (See Provenance below).

SCOPE AND CONTENT

Includes original photo postcards, negatives, copy prints, half-tone prints pertaining to the Mexican Revolution. The majority of the images are copy prints, which are often duplicated within the collection, and some replicate images from separate sources. Many of the copies are from the Texas State Library's W.D. Hornaday Collection. A smaller group of images donated by Mrs. Polly Callum are of very good quality and contain postcards by photographer D.W. Hoffman. The collection also includes a group of original, large-format nitrate negatives by an unknown photographer. They are of professional quality and document some of the revolutionary activity in the El Paso/Ciudad Juárez area in 1910-1911. In addition, the Mexican Revolution Photograph Collection contains copy prints of movie stills with captions. A few copy prints show movie posters about Pancho Villa. Titles of these movies include Pancho Villa, La Venganza del Guerrillero!!, Pancho Villa en Columbus, El Reino del Terror and La Venganza de Pancho Villa starring Doroteo Arango-Pancho Villa himself. These cinematic images are an important resource for the study of cine Mexicano and the Mexican Revolution.

SERIES DESCRIPTION

The images in this collection consist primary of photographs about the Mexican Revolution (1910 to c.1940).

Series I. Contains original negatives and original prints. These are mostly images of war casualties, artillery, military festivities and military officials posing with troops. A percentage of these are not necessarily related to military actions in the Mexican Revolution but are of general topics such as indigenous ruins, monuments, street scenes, buildings, railroad stations, and other images.

Series II. Contains postcards of images of the Revolution including many taken in the areas surrounding El Paso, Texas and Ciudad Juárez, Chihuahua.

Series III. The majority in this series are copy prints many of which are of poor quality and are printed with high contrast or are merely photomechanical prints. These include images such as the cadaver of Francisco Villa and other images of war heroes such as Díaz, Orozco, and Madero. It also photos of Mexican Federales, canon artillery, military camps, battle scenes, and other related topics. The second sub-series includes a small group of Revolution related images donated by El Paso historian W. H. Timmons. This series concludes with a small group of photos of landscapes and ruins near Casas Grandes in northern Chihuahua. The third part of this series is a selection of copy prints from of movie stills and posters.

Series IV. This series includes oversize exhibit prints mounted in glass frames. They are enlargements of original photographic postcards that were printed by the Special Collections Department.

Series V. This last series contains duplicate prints of various photos from the collection along with various contact sheets.

PROVENANCE

Photographs were donated by several different individuals, including W. H. Timmons, Polly Callum etc. Some copy photographs were generated by the UTEP Library from loaned ephemera or original motion picture film.

RESTRICTIONS

No restrictions.
