Biographical Sketch

John W. Cathcart, a doctor and radiologist, was born in Cerro Grande County, Iowa in 1877. He was a veteran of the Spanish-American War. In 1903 Cathcart graduated from Northwestern University and then moved to El Paso, Texas.

Dr. Cathcart was the first intern at Hotel Dieu Hospital. He lived in the hospital for about a year with his wife Ethyle Hicks Cathcart and baby daughter Florence Cathcart Melby. Cathcart was in charge of the x-ray machine and became chief radiologist in 1904. He held this position till his death in 1942.

Cathcart was active in the medical community, serving as a member of the Radiological Society of America and the Southwestern Medical Association. Cathcart served as president for the El Paso Medical Society in 1919. In addition, Cathcart published his research and findings published in notable medical journals, most discuss radiology and the treatment of breast and uterine cancers. Dr. Cathcart died on September 13, 1942.
