Biographical Sketch:

Mary A. Sarber was an important librarian and supporter of historic preservation efforts in El Paso. She expanded the Southwest Collection of the El Paso Public Library and turned it into a valuable resource for the community. Sarber began working at the El Paso Public Library in 1975 and held various positions there during her long career. These positions included Head of the Southwest Collection, Interim Director, and Main Library Administrator. Over the years Sarber helped facilitate the inclusion of El Paso buildings designed by Henry C. Trost into the National Register of Historic Places, promoted collections of historical photos with traveling exhibits and slide shows, and publicized the works of southwestern writers. In addition to her library career, Sarber wrote or edited: Census of 1841 for Ysleta, Socorro, and San Elizario; Charles F. Lummis: A Bibliography; Photographs from the Border: the Otis A. Aultman Collection; and The Southwest Book Awards: The First Twenty-Five Years. She also published several articles about Mexican Revolution-era postcards and about public libraries, such as A Century of Growth: The El Paso Public Library. Additionally, Sarber served on the Border Regional Library Association's Southwest Book Awards Committee for many years and chaired the El Paso Herald-Post Writer's Hall of Fame Committee. She also founded the Borderland Postcard Club and was an active member of the Texas Library Association, the Public Library Association, and the Border Regional Library Association. For her service to the El Paso community, Sarber received multiple awards and honors including Librarian of the Year from the Border Regional Library Association, an Achievement Award from the El Paso Historical County Commission, and membership in the El Paso County Historical Society Hall of Honor.

Series Arrangement:

Postcard images of libraries: arranged alphabetically by state.
